3 Policemen Are Cleared In Clegg Arrest Case

Minority Dissent Would Censure Gibboney; Barrett To Commend Him

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A special trial board yesterday cleared three policemen of charges they had unjustifiably arrested, illegally detained, and beaten Julius Willie Clegg, 26-year-old Negro war veteran.

A dissenting minority opinion held that Pvt. John G. Gibboney, 34, of the First Precinct, was guilty of the arrest and detention charges, and should be given a warning.

Police Chief Robert J. Barrett announced after the verdict he was "not disturbed" by the dissent and would "officially commend" Gibboney for arresting Clegg.

Special Investigator David S. Ennis, 41, and Detective Sergt. Alex K. Kapsol, 33, of the Sex Squad, charged with beating Clegg, received a unanimous exoneration verdict from the three-man board.

Three on Board

The board was made up of two police officials—Inspector Clement P. Cox and Thirteenth Precinct Capt. Albert I. Bullock—and one civilian, James O'D. Moran, a member of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Although splitting on the illegal arrest and detention charges against Pvt. Gibboney, the board unanimously cleared the patrolman of two other counts; refusing to permit Clegg to communicate with his wife and place of employment; and failing to bring Clegg before a magistrate without delay.

There were no written opinions by the board, but Moran is expected to file a brief on his dissent over the weekend.

Clegg, who lives at 1106 21st st. ne., and works for The Washington Post, was arrested at 6 a. m. Saturday, August 2, at the corner of 13th and E sts. nw. by Private Gibboney on suspicion of molesting a white woman. The woman failed to identify Clegg as a molester. Police held Clegg for 34 hours on an "open" charge before releasing him.

Roger Robb, attorney for Clegg, commented that the board would have come to Moran's dissenting conclusion "unanimously" if the

3 of 4 Chiefs Assert Murphy Is Inefficient

Three battalion chiefs testified yesterday that Fire Chief Clement Murphy demoralized his department by rotating personnel, but this was denied by a fourth battalion leader.

The conflicting statements were all from prosecution witnesses.

Denial of the inefficiency, made by Battalion Chief Christopher D. Bartelmess, came as a last-minute turnabout for the prosecution, just at the close of the fifth day of testimony on charges that Murphy is unfit.

Earlier yesterday, Battalion Chief Fred Litteral said he falsified reports stating that his unit was efficient, because, he said, he feared reprisals.

Litteral had first said that the reports were "true." Then, when asked by trial board member Joseph A. Wilner if he would have signed the papers "if the (Commissioners) immunity order had been issued six months ago," he replied, "No."

On Thursday, the Commissioners issued an order that all witnesses in the trial before the civilian board, headed by Austin F. Canfield, have immunity from "disciplinary action, reprisals, or retaliation" arising from their testimony."

Litteral said there was "a feeling in the department that Murphy

$49 for Husband's Shoes

Wife of Postman Ru... At Pay Inquiry in Senate

"I'M ECONOMICAL, I MEAN REALLY," said Mrs. Jeanne Bolen to Senators yesterday, but averred she could not stretch her postman-husband's salary to meet expenses. Here she shows notes on her testimony to hubby, Leonard Bolen, and sons, Philip, 8; Robert, 9; and Steve, 11.

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The wife of a Washington letter carrier yesterday delighted a Senate Civil Service Subcommittee with an eyeful of pulchritude and shocked it with an earful of what it takes to live on a postman's pay.

Mrs. Jeanne Bolen of 2606 17th st. ne., mother of three boys, gave the subcommittee her household budget of $3274.71, which included nothing for recreation and emergencies but did include $49 for her husband's work shoes. She pointed out the impossibility of stretching $3100 that distance, even though "I'm economical, I really am."

"One of the boys," she added, "asked for a pound of butter for Christmas. He didn't get it."

Authors of Pay Rise Bill

The subcommittee was composed of Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.), who sat chewing an unlighted cigar still in its cellophane wrapper, and Senator Chavez (D., N. M.), who also chewed a cigar but kept it alight. Langer, chairman of the Senate Civil Service Committee, and Chavez are authors of a bill to raise the pay of postal employes as much as $1000 a year.

Mrs. Bolen was preceded to the witness chair by Dr. William H. Stevens, Interstate Commerce Commission statistician, who presented a statement showing monthly pay of railway employes had increased 70.8 per cent since 1939. George Reilly, the committee's staff director, said pay of postal employes had increased only 21 per cent in the same period.

Stevens said monthly railway pay had increased since 1939 from 29.38 per cent for executives and officials to 115.35 per cent for maintenance of way employes. In terms of money he said, this represented an increase from $481 to $623 a month for officials and $101 to $218 for maintenance of way people.

Had Right to Organize

"They got that because they had the right to strike, to organize," said Langer. "Isn't that right?"

Stevens ducked the question. "You've got me on the spot . . .," he began and Langer left the subject.

Reilly interjected that the rail carriers of mail already had been awarded a large part payment on

NLRB Asking Writ to Ban ITU Strikes

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday asked a Federal judge to grant a temporary injunction forbidding the International Typographical Union from calling or conducting any strikes anywhere in the Nation.

The injunction would also forbid the union from trying to get publishers to grant the closed shop and other provisions which the NLRB general counsel charges are in violations of the Taft-Hartley Act.

February 2 Show-Cause Date

If the court order is granted, it would forbid the union from continuing its current city-wide strike of Chicago newspapers and newspaper strikes elsewhere, an NLRB spokesman indicated.

The petition for the injunction was filed in Indianapolis before District Judge Luther M. Swygert. He thereupon gave the ITU until February 2 to show cause, in writing, why the injunction should not be issued.

He also ordered the union officials to appear in court on February 9 to show why they should not be enjoined on that date, as the petition requested.

The request for the order was filed by Jack G. Evans, representing the NLRB General Counsel's office. He asked for it to continue in effect "pending the final adjudication" by the NLRB of a case against the union, now being heard in Chicago.

In that case, the union is charged with a series of violations of the new labor law. It is being brought by the general counsel and the American Newspaper Publishers Association. The case stemmed from ITU bargaining negotiations with many publishers throughout the country, in which the ITU sought to impose "conditions of employment."

It is alleged that the union tried to get around the Taft-Hartley Act

Suspect Confesses Shooting Bethesda Grocer, Police Say

The shotgun bandit who blasted the leg of a Bethesda grocer Monday night and escaped with $1600 was arrested yesterday, county police announced.

The suspect, Vic Sylvester Johnson, 26, formerly of Waldorf, Md., confessed to the crime shortly after his arrest in Baltimore by Montgomery County detectives, police said.

Victim of the ruthless holdup, Houston H. Swink, 39, of Halpine rd., Halpine, Md., was reported in good condition last night at Suburban Hospital. Shot in the knee, Swink may be incapacitated for life, physicians said.

Johnson, with a woman companion, was taken into custody by Detective Sergt. Gassaway Linthicum and Detective Corpl. Jesse B. Day yesterday afternoon after they had methodically trailed him to his new address. He was one of several possible suspects, whose names were given to police by Swink as persons knowing the grocer's habit of bringing the day's receipts to his home.

Police listed Johnson's woman companion as Juanita Smth, 18, of Baltimore, and said she was being held as a material witness. Johnson, police said, confessed he had spent $100 of the loot for clothes for Juanita, and had lost "a considerable sum" in dice games.

Between $65 and $70 in silver, corresponding to the amount Swink had carried, was recovered in Johnson's room, police said.

Swink, co-owner of the S & S Market, 8011 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, told police he was shot without warning by the bandit last Monday night as he got out of his automobile to open his driveway gate. After the shooting, he said, the bandit pointed the gun at his face, but did not shoot again when the grocer pleaded:

"Don't shoot! The money's in the car."

The grocer told police that Johnson was one of several men employed on January 3 at a house party he and his wife had given.

6 Children In Holy Land Death List

Haifa Is Center Of Day's Fighting; Hagana Reports 40 Arabs Killed

Jerusalem, Jan. 16 (AP).—Jews and Arabs tonight battled in the streets of Haifa, one of the greatest ports in the eastern Mediterranean.

Hagana, Jewish militia, said without official confirmation that 40 Arabs were killed and 80 wounded in the day's fighting there.

Other reports, however, limited the casualties to 27 persons killed there and elsewhere in Palestine in 24 hours. Official reports said the dead included eight children and a woman.

Jews bombed two Arab houses and launched attacks on 15 Arab buses in the Haifa area. Arab vengeance squads took to streets with guns and knives.

Workers kept off the bullet-swept streets and Haifa's big oil refineries came to a halt. Loading of Palestine's major export, her orange crop, was all but choked off. This is the peak loading season for the perishable crop which now lies piled up on docks and in warehouses.

With Haifa the main battleground for the time being, the unofficial count of violent deaths in the Holy Land reached 828 since the United Nations voted for partition November 29.

Two Arabs were killed by a bomb southeast of Tel Aviv, and a British soldier was killed in the Gaza sector.

Answering British assertions that a plane believed to be Jewish had fired on a Royal Air Force reconnaissance plane over Hebron yesterday, Hagana said the plane in question was carrying blood plasma from Tel Aviv to a Jewish settlement and was unarmed.

18 Known Dead in Haifa

At least 18 persons were killed in Haifa during the day, including two Jews who died in hand-to-hand knife clashes with Arabs and a Polish Christian who was shot down by unknown attackers.

The figure was expected to go higher when the casualties from the Jewish attacks on Arab buses became known.

Haifa's disorders were touched off by the dawn bombing of the two houses in which 15 Arabs perished. Hagana asserted the victims included a former German officer who had been training Arabs.

The government said the dead included seven children and a woman. The day's eighth child victim—a 12-year-old girl—was killed by Bren gunfire in Nazareth.

Arab riflemen blazed away at the Jewish district of Jerusalem.

Syria Answers Protest

A Jewish Agency spokesman said the agency had learned from non-Jewish sources in Syria that the Damascus government had replied to the protest against attacks by Syrians upon Jewish settlements a week ago. The reply, he said, declared that "the Syrian government is not in a position to restrain its masses, but will at all times respect its international obligations."

Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, Cleveland, Ohio, said in Tel Aviv that an "international police force for Palestine and arms for Jews depends on the attitude of the United States Government in the (United Nations) Security Council."

"Therefore," he added, "American Jews are working in all shades of American public opinion, including the State Department and the White House, to influence the United States."

Reds Arrest 2 U. S. Aides In Hungary

Vienna, Austria, Jan. 16 (AP).—U. S. Army officials said today Russian soldiers arrested two officers attached to the American Legation in Budapest Wednesday at the Hungarian town of Papa, brought them to Vienna and finally released them early Thursday morning.

They were Lieut. Col. Peter J. Kopcsak, assistant military attache, and Lieut. Col. Bernard Thielen.

Snyder Hints Veto for GOP Big Tax Slash

Indicates Proposed Cut of 6.2 Billion Will Stir President

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Treasury Secretary John Snyder yesterday pinned a 6.2-billion price tag on the Knutson tax-reduction bill and implied it will walk right into another veto.

In a day-long bout with the House Ways and Means Committee he tossed charges of "politics" back at GOP sponsors of a general tax cut. He said it would:

(1) Unbalance the budget (2) produce a 2.1-billion-dollar deficit, (3) increase the national debt and (4) keep prices rising.

In a scrappy mood, he took on Republicans and Democrats alike, with these results:

Republicans wrung from him virtual admission that he was not the author of the President's proposed $40 "cost of living" credits for low-income-tax payers, offset by a 75 per cent excess profits tax on corporations. Said Snyder: "Whoever was consulted, we are behind it."

Cut in Tax Receipts Opposed

Democrats, led by Representatives Robt. L. Doughton (N. C.) and John D. Dingell (Mich.) launched a move to write community-property tax benefits for all husbands and wives into the President's tax plan. Snyder insisted, however, that nothing be done to lower total receipts from taxes.

Testifying that the GOP's Knutson general tax cuts will cost 6.2 billion, instead of the 5.6 billion claimed, he told the Republican-dominated committee:

"Under current conditions, it is my firm conviction that a tax reduction of the magnitude involved . . . would constitute a major threat to the Nation's financial integrity and economic stability . . .

"The same considerations which impelled the President to veto H.R.

Covenant Case Arguments End; Decision Unlikely for Months

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Jim Crow covenants were up to six Supreme Court justices today—to be upheld, or struck down, or neither.

After a rousing debate over the covenants on 20 homes in the 100 block of Bryant st. nw., the six justices—a bare quorum of the court—went out yesterday afternoon to talk over their decision. That probably won't come for several months.

Covenants are private agreements which bar Negroes mostly—but often are aimed at Jews, Mexicans and many other groups—from large parts of hundreds of American cities and towns. Many State courts, and the United States Court of Appeals here, have put teeth in them by ordering Negroes and others to move out of homes they bought that were subject to race covenants.

Four groups of these people and the United States Government yesterday finished two days of argument, in which they contended the covenants were against the Constitution and the public policy and must not be enforced by the courts.

Thurgood Marshall, New York Negro attorney, told the justices that the covenants shove millions of Americans down to the level of second-class citizens.

Attorney Charles H. Houston, a leader in Washington Negro circles, said he and his clients were not out to change anybody's private prejudices. But when those prejudices violate the constitutional rights of others, he said, the courts must not back them up with the force of law.

"Racism must go," Houston said.

Just as stoutly, counsel for the white property owners who want the covenants enforced told the court that people have a constitutional right to make contracts about their property—to agree to whom they will sell and to whom they will not sell. And that they have a right to go to court to enforce their contracts.

Attorney Henry Gilligan of Washington told the justices that all the money most people have is invested in their homes. They agree on covenants in their neighborhoods, he said, not out of race hatred but in order to live their lives among neighbors of their own choosing.

"They want to be unhampered," Gilligan went on, "by the greed of unscrupulous real estate speculators posing as friends of the Negro race while mulcting them of large sums of money."

Raphael G. Urciole, the realty man who sold several Bryant

Ruhr Strikes Spread to 3 More Cities

50,000 Leave Jobs As Food Situation Becomes Critical; Reds' Role Probed

Duesseldorf, Germany, Jan. 16 (AP).—Strikes in three Ruhr cities touched off new unrest in western Germany today.

Investigators probed the Ruhr crisis to see whether the strikes were Communist-inspired or a spontaneous reaction to critical food shortages.

Fifty thousand workers in the Ruhr cities of Duisberg, Muehlheim and Dislaken struck against the food shortages, bringing to more than 160,000 the number who have walked out for brief periods in the last week. The total out, however, was about 50,000, most of the remaining 110,000 having returned to work, including 25,000 who struck yesterday at Oberhausen.

Fat, Meat Supplies Low

The attention being given the situation by British-American militar authorities was especially acute because of the publication of "Protocol M," purporting to outline a Communist master plan of strikes for the purpose of breaking down the Marshall Plan by attacking the industrial heart of Europe.

The British Foreign Office said it was convinced the plan was of authentic Communist origin. The Communist-controlled Socialist Unity Party declared in Berlin that the document was a "clumsy swindle."

German bizonal officials in Frankfurt warned the 40,000,000 Germans of the British-American zones that some of them may not receive "a single gram of fat and little meat" beginning February 1.

"For the first time since the end of the war, we really face famine," said Dr. Gebhard Seelos, president of the German bizonal executive committee at a news conference. "We need 16,000 tons of fat for western Germany for one four-week ration period but only 5000 tons are available."

Hans Boeckler, leader of the German Federation of Trade Unions in the British zone, said the situation in the Ruhr promised to be relieved by a promised contribution of fats from other states and that the strikers in the three cities would return to work tomorrow.

One Cow for Frankfurt

Deputy Burgermeister Julius Reiber in the American zone industrial city of Darmstadt, said bakeries there had flour for only one day.

Hamburg was reported in almost similar plight despite a flow of 300,000 tons of grain a month from the United States through that port.

In the bizonal economic capital of Frankfurt, the Butchers' Guild said one lone cow was brought in today for slaughter to provide a city of 600,000 people with meat.

All British-American authorities agreed the hunger crisis was largely the responsibility of western Germany's 1,600,000 farmers. Officials have told German food ministers it is their job to gather in the meat and fat from the farms. The farmers have been refusing to

Slugfest Is Seen With Taft Leading Off February 9 in Speech at Chicago

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, whose foes had started calling him "the Mr. Hush" of politics, yesterday announced his candidacy for the 1948 Republican nomination for President.

A hammer-and-tongs battle for the GOP prize is now an early prospect.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, already an avowed candidate, is expected to take to the warpath against Dewey in a speaking tour starting in Chicago February 9.

Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, another declared candidate, may open up on Dewey by name even before this. He already has taken several indirect cracks at the 1944 Republican standard bearer, calling him a "me too" politician and accusing him of "coyness and clever evasion."

To Speak Feb. 12 In Boston

Governor Dewey, a slugger himself, is to make a Lincoln Day speech at Boston on February 12.

The announcement of Dewey's candidacy was made in Albany by James C. Hagerty, the Governor's executive assistant and public relations man. Hagerty gave a statement to newspaper reporters, which read:

"I am informed that a group of Governor Dewey's friends in Oregon have entered his name in the preferential primary in the State.

"I know that the Governor warmly appreciates the support and loyalty of his many friends in Oregon.

"As the Governor has frequently said, he is fully engaged with the work of the legislative session and cannot actively seek the nomination of his party for President, but if nominated he would accept."

Was Secret to Nobody

That Governor Dewey was a candidate although undeclared, was a secret to nobody. Even so, Albany dispatches said his announcement came as a "surprise."

This was because it marked a change in strategy. His associates had said he was determined to do in '48 as he had done in '44—withhold an announcement but to remain in a "receptive" mood while his friends and admirers built up his delegate strength in the various States.

Why Governor Dewey abandoned his strategy of silence was something best known to himself. Clearly, however, he must have concluded that his best chance lay in making an open fight for the nomination.

"Ike" Threat Mounting

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower continued to say he wanted nothing to do with politics, but the Ike-for-President movement was becoming more and more a threat to the whole GOP field.

There had been talk, too, that Dewey was "slipping." The Taft and Stassen camps had been saying so for a long time, which was hardly surprising. However, there was such talk at a meeting last week at Tulsa, Okla., where were gathered Republican chairmen from 12 Midwestern States.

Aid Plan May Adopt Check On Loan Uses

Vandenberg Interested As McCloy Describes World Bank's Method

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The coming Marshall Plan legislation may embody some of the World Bank's methods of watching the use of its loans, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) indicated yesterday.

Vandenberg and most members of his Senate Foreign Relations Committee seemed deeply impressed with President John J. McCloy's description of how the Bank "follows through" on the 497 million dollars it has already advanced to four countries in Europe.

"What interests me," Vandenberg told McCloy, is that you have successfully established a system whereby we can follow our dollars abroad and see that we are getting our money's worth. If that can be at the base of the European recovery program, I think half the criticism of it in this country would disappear."

Vandenberg said the "single protective device" of constant checking and inspection "would do more to satisfy American public opinion than anything I can think of."

Information Lack Cited

McCloy told the committee that "the real effectiveness of the British loan"—the American credit of $3,750,000,000 approved in 1946—"was obscured by the lack of information, both here and in England, about the uses to which the loan was being put."

"I believe the International Bank's policy in this respect is something you gentlemen might examine in connection with ERP," he said. "Nobody has ever regarded our 'follow-through' as an infringement of sovereignty."

Later in his testimony, he urged that "the 'follow-through' organization include not only Americans but Europeans as well—Europeans not representing their respective governments." He also urged that the 16 Marshall Plan countries set up an organization that could act collectively on recovery problems.

"The more responsibility you throw to the Europeans the more they will achieve," McCloy said.

Would "Put Heat On"

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) commented that "they ought to have a continuing organization now to put the heat on those governments." And Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) thought the coming bill should contain language requiring the Europeans to cooperate and carry out their pledges.

Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D.,

In Abortion Case

Mrs. Hobbs Accuses Laughlin Of 'Husband-Removal' Boast

Attorney James J. Laughlin once boasted he could have her husband "removed without trace," Mrs. Esther Pickard Hobbs, 23, erstwhile sweetheart of the lawyer, testified in District Court yesterday.

The young woman's remarks came as Laughlin was questioning her about alleged phone calls she made to him from her home in Raleigh, N. C., following an abortion performed on her in March 1947. Laughlin and Dr. Henry T. Peckham, jr., are codefendants charged with abortion.

She said that the lawyer had once told her and friends that he could have her husband, whom she married May 2, 1947, put out of the way.

Thus, she said, when she heard that Stanford Carrier (a man whom Laughlin successfully defended in a murder case here in 1943) was in Raleigh, where she was living with her husband, she grew worried.

It was because of this, she said, that she made a phone call to Laughlin.

Another Government witness, Hubert L. Stottlemyer, who formerly worked in a radio shop at 2116 Pennsylvania ave. nw., told of driving Mrs. Hobbs to the office of Dr. Peckham, 428 8th st. se., in March, 1947, where, the prosecution charges an illegal operation took place.

"Did you request Dr. Peckham to perform an abortion on a young woman in whom a friend was interested?" asked Prosecutor Charles Murray.

"Yes," the witness answered.

Stottlemyer said he had been given an envelope by Mrs. Irma Petrain, a nurse, at whose home Mrs. Hobbs stayed following an abortion. This envelope, he said, still sealed, he handed to Dr. Peckham. The Government contends the envelope contained money.

The witness said he had been introduced to Mrs. Hobbs at Mrs. Petrain's home.

He was introduced to a man at the same time he said but could not recall the other's name. He described the man as being about 6 feet tall. Laughlin told reporters

U. S. Takes Action For Added Defense

Government Shows Cool Determination To Protect Itself on Fronts Against Reds

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

In a mood of cool determination, this Government took action yesterday on several fronts to strengthen its defense for the cold war with the Soviet Union.

1. The United States Senate, unhurried, unexcited, unanimously voted to authorize the State Department to continue and expand its information service to combat Russia's "vicious, hostile" propaganda overseas.

2. Attorney General Tom C. Clark formally announced that the Justice Department had adopted new controls to curb subversive activity by alien visitors to the United States.

3. A House Administration subcommittee began to study a bill to bar the Communist Party from the ballot in the United States. When New York City's Communist councilman, Benjamin J. Davis, raged against the bill, committee members calmly—almost wearily—refrained from questioning him.

4. FBI and Immigration agents yesterday arrested Alexander Bittleman, member of the American Communist Party's National Committee, in Miami for deportation to his native Russia. The Justice Department said the warrant for the Bittleman deportation was issued because he advocates the overthrow of this Government by force.

Entirely missing, in these moves, were the angry denunciations and furious charges which have sometimes marked actions against United States Communists or counter-moves toward Russia. It was as if this country had at last made up its mind, and having decided, was just getting ahead with the job.

This marked change in political temperature was especially noticeable in the Senate. The Smith-Mundt bill to extend United States information activities, which only last summer could raise some senatorial tempers to the boiling point, slid through the Senate as a matter of course. A handful of Senators on both sides of the aisle hardly looked up as the voice vote was called, and a clerk announced passage.

A little earlier Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) had made a factual report to the Senate of his subcommittee's summer trip to study propaganda activities overseas. He estimated that Russia is spending 120 million dollars to 180 million dollars a year in its "war of words" against the United States. He quoted some of the things the Russians are broadcasting to Europe about the United States.

Now the measure has only to go to conference, since the House passed a somewhat similar measure last session.

The Justice Department bluntly announced that effective March 15, it will reduce the length of time that alien visitors may remain in the United States, and that the 16 District Immigration officers will be directed to keep a close watch over all aliens here on visitors' permits.

Before entering this country, visitors will be required to pledge that they will refrain from any speech-making or propaganda activities unless authorized so to do by this Government. Violators will be promptly deported, the department said.

After the new regulations go into effect, visitor visas will be good only for six months, instead of one year as in the past. Persons who want to travel around the United States will receive only a three-month visa. All visitors must notify immigration officials of their whereabouts at least every three months.

three hours before being released at 2 a. m.," he said.

He said the Americans were under armed guard at all times and were not allowed to call the legation in Budapest or American authorities here.

The officers checked out of their hotel early this afternoon and were believed en route back to Budapest.

The incident follows closely upon similar ones in the Berlin area. The Soviets have detained various Americans at different times in Germany during the past few weeks, usually on the ground that they were violating some prohibition by being in the Soviet zone.

Soviet troops in Hungary are officially supposed to be there only for the purpose of maintaining the Russian line of communication with Soviet occupation forces in Austria. The Balkan peace treaties, completed last year, provided that the Russians should pull out all forces except those maintaining supply lines.

The mere fact that the troops are in Hungary for that purpose rather than as occupation control forces, however, should sharply restrict their activities and not give them the legal right of arrest and control of the countryside which they have, for instance, in the area of Germany that they hold by occupation.

(In Washington, the State Department reported it had the "matter under consideration.")

Senate Group To Reconsider Vote on Kuter

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) promised President Truman last night that the Senate Armed Services Committee would reconsider an earlier action that blocked Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter from being named CAB chairman.

The committee on Tuesday unanimously voted down a President proposal that Kuter be allowed to keep his status as an Air Force officer and military airman's pay of $15,144 a year while holding the $10,000 a year civilian post.

Mr. Truman protested the action was a "disservice" to American air policy, and Gurney replied that the committee would review the matter early next week.

Members of the group, however, said privately that the decision very probably would stand. Not only do the Senators feel their action was right, but since then have received a heavy flood of mail commending the stand.

The group made it plain that their vote was no reflection against General Kuter. They said they objected to naming active military men to civilian posts, particularly where they would receive more pay than civilians in comparable positions.

In a letter addressed "Dear Chan," Mr. Truman expressed surprise and disappointment at the action. He pointed out that Kuter now holds the post of American representative to the International Civil Aviation Organization by special legislation. He said he had supposed there would be no objection to man of Kuter's "ability, experience and lack of politic contacts" becoming CAB head.

Writin late yesterday to "Dear Harry," Gurney said the group would "consider carefully the contents of your good letter."

sell for the present mark, fearing there will be a currency change which would leave old marks largely valueless.

German bizonal leaders have been talking of new legislation for prosecution of farmers withholding food, but Hans Schlange-Schoeningen, German food chief, said he could do little without central police powers.

Allied authorities have refused to give the Germans central police power, fearing it would be abused in Gestapo-like fashion. British authorities also have turned down German suggestions that British troops be called out to enforce food collections.

We'll Stay, Clay Says

Berlin, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay head of the U. S. occupation forces, said today that Russian Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky might make the first move Tuesday at a control council meeting to follow up the Soviet claim that the United States had forfeited their right to stay in Berlin because of the merger of the Anglo-U. S. zones.

He rejected, even in advance of its possible official advancement, the Russian argument that the economic merger of the western zones and the prospective establishment of a German governmental regime had any bearing on the four-power rule in Berlin.

ERP May Adopt World Bank Method of Checking Loan Uses

Utah) said McCloy was on the right track in wanting to leave much of the responsibility to the Europeans as a group. He said the Marshall Plan could succeed only by using "the moral force of the 16 countries collectively in seeing that each individual country lives up to its promises."

None of the Senators except Thomas indorsed McCloy's idea of using Europeans to keep watch on the uses of American aid. But it was quite clear, from the praises of McCloy from Republicans and Democrats alike, that the committee would draw upon World Bank experience in rewriting the Administration's draft bill.

Here, in brief, is how the World Bank checks up on the uses of its loans:

First of all, the bank does not advance the entire amount of a loan all at once. After the borrowing country places an order, it submits the contract and invoices to the bank for checking. If the bank approves these documents, it makes the necessary money available either to the borrowing government or directly to the supplier.

Later the bank's officials in the borrowing country actually check on the delivery of the supplies and on the uses to which they are put. If early installments of the loan are being used improperly, the bank can always withhold subsequent payments.

The bank's officials who do this checking are all Europeans, although so far the bank has avoided using a citizen of the borrowing country. Only a tiny number is needed for such duties; Six in France and two each in the Netherlands, Belgium and Luzembourg, the countries to which the bank has made loans up to now.

Bank officials here said yesterday that big staffs were not needed, and that Europeans familiar with European conditions were found to be more efficient "hounds" in these matters than Americans imported for the purpose.

Three Other Main Points

McCloy made three other main points yesterday as follows:

1. The World Bank has to compete for its funds by selling bonds in the open market; hence, it cannot be expected to make the type of loan needed in the present critical state of Europe. Moreover, it represents 46 nations, not 16, and will have to lend for undeveloped areas of the world as well as to the western European countries.

2. "When you make a loan under the Marshall Plan, as distinct from a grant, make a loan and not a fuzzy thing." It would be wiser to make a free grant than "a half-hearted loan that may or may not be repaid." The bulk of American aid under the Marshall Plan probably will have to be free grants, at least during the first year of the program.

3. On the basis of a careful study by the bank's staff experts from many countries, the Administration's request for $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months is not extravagant. "Indeed, it is a rather tight fit considering the objectives you want to attain." The World Bank doubts whether European exports will be as high as the executive agencies of the United States Government have estimated.

Rejects Questions

As a former Assistant Secretary of War, McCloy was asked repeatedly what he thought of the proposed methods of administering the ERP, but as head of an international agency he declined to answer.

Senator Lodge got him to say, however, that he had seen no "confusion" in American embassies abroad during the war because of the fact that the Lend-Lease Administration was separate from the State Department.

Republican Senators felt this was an important answer. They felt it refuted Secretary Marshall's recent testimony that there was "vast confusion" because the State Department could not control some war agencies in matters of foreign policy.

Expressman Draws Line at Exercising Lion

Rapid City, S. Dak., Jan. 16 (AP).—Expressman K. Garrett says he isn't observing company rules that animals in his care are supposed to be watered and exercised.

Water, yes, but he didn't take the 600-pound African lion, which arrived last night, for a walk.

The animal was consigned from a Minot, N. Dak., zoo to Roe Bailey, Custer, S. Dak.

Garrett said Bailey was en route to pick up the lion, but added: "Next week we're expecting two tigers." They're for Bailey, too.

Four Billion More Asked for Air Arm

2-Year Expansion Bill Given Good Chance for Passage

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Congress yesterday received legislation calling for a four-billion-dollar expansion of American air power during the next two years.

The proposal, introduced by Senator Ed Johnson (D., Colo.), would start building the powerful "counter-offensive" bomber force recommended by President Truman's Air Policy Commission as the best guarantee against atomic war.

Veteran legislators said such a bill had an excellent chance of passage. For Congressional reaction to the Commission's demand for an up-to-date, hard-hitting air force of 20,500 planes has been favorable.

Taft Speech "Significant"

They regarded Senator Robert Taft's speech Thursday night—as highly significant. The Senator GOP leader normally has been on the side of lower defense expenditures.

Senator Johnson's sponsorship of the Presidential Commission's program also is noteworthy. The Coloradan's votes on defense expansion often parallel Taft's.

Both are staunch opponents of universal military training and some saw in their advocacy of an all-powerful air force a move to beat UMT by expending air power.

Johnson's bill, entitled "Air Force Development Act of 1948" would authorize spending two billion dollars in each of the 1949 and 1950 fiscal years. Such a program would expand the Air Force from 55 to 70 groups, as urged by USAF chiefs.

18 Billion Cost in '52

The complete program as backed by the Presidential Commission, would provide a force of 70 Regular Air Force, 27 National Guard and 34 Air Reserve groups by January 1, 1953. This would include 12,400 first-line planes, backed by 8100 replacements, and would run defense costs to 18 billion dollars annually by 1952.

The preamble to Senator Johnson's bill recited the commission's findings that such a "prompt and vigorous counteroffensive" air force could best prevent atomic war by letting "any aggressor" know he would "pay a devastating price" if he attacked the United States.

The bill declares that "preplacement of atomic and biological weapons" soon may become a major problem. It calls for a "striking force of aircraft and long-range missiles in being and ready for immediate action . . . second to none in quantity and quality."

U. N. Urged By Pakistan To Stop India

Lake Success, Jan. 16 (AP).—Pakistan called on the United Nations Security Council today to stop Indian "aggression" against Pakistan and create a commission or commissions to investigate and verify Pakistan's charges of "mass destruction" of Moslems in Indian territory.

The Moslem state also demanded that the Council compile a list of Government officials and rulers—presumably Indian princes— and others who might be deemed guilty of "genocide" (race extermination) with a view to trying them in an international tribunal.

Pakistan replied to Indian charges of aggression in Kashmir with a counter-charge that India is plotting "the destruction of the state of Pakistan." She asked also that the Council stop the fighting in Kashmir. A similar request was made to the Council yesterday by India.

Other U. N. developments included:

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister, made it clear to U. N. Atomic Energy Commission delegates that Russia has not changed her minority opposition attitude in the commission.

Britain disclosed she had sent a note to Yugoslavia charging the Yugoslav government with creating conditions in Trieste calculated to "jeopardize" the independence of the free territory, which was placed under U. N. jurisdiction by the Italian Peace Treaty.

The British charged Marshal Tito's government with using redistribution of land "as a means of victimizing persons whose political opinions are not in line with those of the Yugoslav government."

Pact Signed By Romania And Bulgaria

Bucharest, Romania, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—Bulgarian Premier Georgi Dimitrov today signed a new friendship and military pact with Romania and declared that Greece now constituted a "threat to the peace of the Balkans."

The treaty, the first postwar alliance between former enemy states, was in line with other recent military pacts among Balkan countries to combat aggression from "imperialists."

Premier Petru Groza and Foreign Minister Anna Pauker signed for Romania.

20 American Officers To Join Greeks in Field

Athens, Greece, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—Twenty American officers, all combat tveterans, had their final briefing today and on Monday will join Greek forces in the field to advise them how to clean up the Communist-led guerillas.

Maj. Gen. William Livesay, chief of the American Military Mission to Greece, said the officers would not tbe armed.

Ase the 20 officers make last preparations to go into the field, 21 more are scheduled to take off from Washington for Athens.

Griswold told correspondents that his economic adviser, Eugene Clay, would leave for Washington in about 10 days and "I may join him there later." He had said earlier that he might go to Washington to testify about the Marshall Plan before congressional committees.

Press dispatches said today that guerillas, using mortars and other heavy weapons, had made their eleventh attack on Nigrita, northeast of Salonika, but had been repulsed.

Other reports said guerilla forces on Samos Islands had been reduced from 300 to 100 during widespread "clearing" operations by Greek troops.

French Police Raid Believed To Have Blocked Illegal Arms

Paris, Jan. 16 (AP).—Paris newspapers said today local constabulary apparently had frustrated an attempt to parachute arms or supplies to an underground group in the Cher Department of central France.

The press interpreted the incident as further evidence that both rightists and leftists in France are arming.

Prefect Maxime Roux of Cher left for Paris to report personally to the Minister of the Interior after the newspapers had told how the constabulary, tipped that arms were to be dropped near St. Amand, surprised about 20 armed men and a truck waiting at a flare-lighted landing strip early yesterday.

The men fled, but first set signal flares which apparently warned away a plane which circled the spot once and then headed north.

Center and leftwing newspapers reported three arrests and said more were imminent in connection with formation of an alleged clandestine "Loyalist Blue Army" which they said grew out of a rightist plan to set up an anti-Communist regime like Napoleon Bonaparte's early directorate.

All newspapers except the two most conservative connected the reported arrests with the St. Amand affair and with repeated reports of the discovery of arms depots in various parts of France. These activities have given rise to reports that both the right and left were receiving arms from abroad.

These reports have mentioned sympathizers in Spain, gun runners from Italy and rightist elements in the French zone of Germany as possible sources of arms for rightists, and the Soviet zone of Germany as the possible source of arms for pro-Communist partisans.

Government circles, shy at making any comment, nevertheless have not dismissed the parachuting of arms as improbable.

Said one government official, "During the war we had one Maquis—now we have two of them arming against each other."

Arrests reported in the press included two persons said to be connected with an automobile factory, while the arrest of a "big industrialist" was said to be imminent.

Two Paris District Mayors Are Ousted

Paris, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—The Communist mayors of two Paris arrondissements (districts) were ousted by the Minister of Interior tonight because of their "hostility to republican institutions."

Officials said it was the first time the democratic French government ever had ousted the mayor of a Paris arrondissement and reflected the stiffening attitude of Premier Robert Schuman's government toward the Communist Party.

The mayors were Eugene Giraud of the eleventh arrondissement of Popincourt and Roger Morel of the twentieth arrondissement of Menilmontant—both working-class districts. Paris is divided into 20 arrondissements.

Planes to Fly Britons From Canton Riots

Hong Kong (Saturday), Jan. 17 (AP).—Approximately 100 British women and children will be flown to safety from Canton, where rioting Chinese mobs yesterday invaded and burned the British consulate, injured six Britons and threatened a number of Americans.

(The British Foreign Office announced in London that Sir Ralph Stevenson, British ambassador, had protested to the Chinese government about the Canton disorders.)

For three hours the anti-British demonstration gripped the Chinese city, which is a few hours away from Hong Kong by steamship.

Subsequently, Hong Kong Airways canceled all scheduled hights to and from Canton for tomorrow in order to use the planes to transport the British women and children here.

Shippping Is Suspended

An earlier account said that eventually all Britons might leave Canton. British shipping to the troubled Chinese city was suspended.

The United States consul general there, H. A. Boucher, reported by phone that no Americans were hurt, although some United States citizens escaped harm only by satisfactorily identifying themselves.

Demonstrators protested the eviction of 300 of the 2000 Chinese living in the ancient section of Britain's Hong Kong crown colony. The evictions began several days ago after the British ordered the destruction of shacks on Kowloon for health reasons.

In the rioting in the British compound on Shameen Island, the modern Occidental quarter of Canton, the Chinese were said tto have burned down the consulate office building and to have destroyed the residence of British Consul General Ronald Hall and his subordinate's home. Hall was escorted by police to the safety of the United States vice consul's residence.

A dispatch from Canton gave this account of the demonstration:

The Chinese mob acted after a sctudent in a short speech said: "The British pulled down our houses and injured our fellow countrymen. Why can't we smash the consulate."

Five-Man Mission From China Arrives With Recovery Plan

By The Associated Press

Members of a five-man Chinese mission arrived yesterday to help put the final touches on the Administration's new recovery program for China.

Sent by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, the group already has recevied a pledge it will be consulted by Secretary of State Marsall before the aid proposal, expected to call for an outlay of some 300 million dollars, is sent to Congress.

Pei Tsu-yi, a former governor of the Nanking government's Central Bank, headed the mission. Three members arrived by plane and were joined here by two others who already were in this country.

The new aid proposal, a scaled-down companion of the European recovery program now before Congress, may be ready before the end of the month, officials indicated.

The State Department said it is prepared to discuss with the mission "the present economic situation in China and measures that the Chinese government is undertaking."

In addition to Pei Tsu-Yi, members arriving included Hung Shen, deputy director of the department of railways and highways in the nationalist government ministry of communications, and Chu Pao-jein, a financial specialist.

Already here were Dr. Kan Lee, a foreign office adviser who is secretary general of the mission, and Fu Chen-liang, chief representative in the United States of the Chinese natural resources commission.

Gandhi, On Hunger Strike, Gasps Appeal for India Peace

New Delhi, India, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—Mohandas K. Gandhi, too weak from four days of fasting to rise from his bed, gasped out a dramatic demand today that Moslem Pakistan now make a gesture of peace and friendship toward India.

Speaking through a microphone held to his lips by one of his followers, Gandhi referred to the action of the Indian cabinet last night in resuming financial payments to Pakistan as a peace gesture.

"I have been told that this decision was taken with a view to amity and friendship with Pakistan. This will put Pakistan on trial. Let us see how Pakistan responds. Not only Kashmir but all issues outstanding between India and Pakistan should be settled.

"I am at peace. But if there is no peace in India and Pakistan I will have no interest in living."

Untold millions of Hindus, and Moslems too, were praying for Gandhi's safe deliverance from his self-imposed ordeal. New Delhi authorities declared tomorrow a public holiday to permit all local officials, students and others to organize peace and prayer meetings for him, and demonstrations to beseech Gandhi, whose kidneys are now affected, to break his fast.

Peace parades and meetings—and demonstrations of Hindu and Sikh refugees demanding war with Pakistan—multiplied.

"Save Gandhi! Hindus and Moslems unite!" shouted some paraders.

"Send Gandhi to Pakistan! Death to Gandhi!" shouted others.

Steel Industry Advised to Curb Gray Market

The steel industry, currently operating at a record peacetime production rate, was advised by a congressional investigating committee to assume responsibility for wiping out a "gray market" estimated at one billion dollars a year if it hopes to avoid new Government controls.

The Senate Small Business Subcommittee on steel released a report which said the country "cannot have prosperity today unless we have enough steel to make that prosperity possible."

Chairman Martin (R., Pa.) said members of his group themselves oppose renewal of wartime Government powers to divide up the supply. The report declared, however, that something must be done to curb the "gray market" deals in which steel is sold at prices far above the normal market.

"It is clearly the responsibility of the steel industry to take steps to wipe out such activities and to assure the return of such tonnages to normal channels of trade," the report added.

Senator Murray (D., Mont.) was sharply critical of the report, saying it had "failed to come to grips" with the basic problem of steel supply. He is a member of the Small Business Committee, but not of the steel subcommittee.

The committee's report favored voluntary distribution agreements, saying that reimposition of Government allocation and priorities "however, limited and sparingly used" would have the effect of "slowing down production."

Robbing Jail Disliked

Covenant Case Debate Ends

street homes to Negroes when he knew there was a covenant against it, was nothing but a speculator who made $1500 on every sale, Gilligan told the court.

Lived in Part-White Neighborhood

There are 20 houses under anti-Negro covenants in the 100 block of Bryant st. nw. and 11 more where Negroes have lived for many years. Gilligan said he lived in that neighborhood himself and was glad to tell the court there never had been any trouble between the races there, and also that there had been no trouble with the Negroes who bought several houses that were under covenant and have been living in them while the issue has been in court.

Attorney James A. Crooks, once counsel of the Rent Control Board here, smashed back at the claims of counsel for the Negroes and the Government that covenants are against the public policy. Crooks said Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner of the United States Court of Appeals here had laid down the public policy of the District. And that it was a policy of race segregation.

Crooks—who has been the anchor man of the covenanters' squad of lawyers—reminded the Supreme Court that judges do not dream up public policy or spin it out of their own ideas of social right and wrong. He said they must find it in the acts of Congress and the State Legislatures.

Law Provides for Segregation

Now here in Washington, said Crooks, the law provides for separate schools. The Alley Dwelling Authority, he went on, was a public agency set up by Congress to build low-cost housing with public money. And when that housing was built, it was run under a policy or race segregation. The same is true, Crooks added, of the present Federal Housing Authority. And at no time has Congress taken any action against the race segregation policy of the District.

As the hearing closed, there were several ways the cases might go. A 4-to-2 vote would be enough to swing the ruling one way or the other, but such a decision by less than a majority of the whole court would be sure to be attacked on that ground.

A 3-to-3 tie might lead to the case being argued over again, or leave in force the lower court orders upholding the covenants, whichever the Supreme Court ordered.

There was a strong hint that the District cases might be decided one way and the rest—which came from Michigan and Missouri—another.

Weakness Seen in D. C. Covenant

When they were asking Crooks questions, Justices Black and Frankfurter pounced on something that may turn out to be a fatal weakness of the Bryant street covenants. This is that they provide for a $2000 penalty in case the property ever is sold or rented to Negroes. The covenants say nothing about putting Negroes out of any houses they might buy in the block.

Now there is a rule of law, that covers most cases, that when a contract provides for a fixed amount of damages any one who complains of the contract being broken will be limited to the damages and will have no other remedy. If the rule applies to the Bryant st. contract, the white home owners there might have a right to collect $2000 from somebody—Crooks said he was not sure who would owe the money or who would get it—but they would not have a right to put Bryant st. Negroes out of the houses they bought.

Crooks said he did not think the rule would apply on Bryant Street, that he thought the white home owners would choose whether to sue for the money or to force the Negroes out of the white end of the block.

Ruling Not Fundamental

Frankfurter said that was right, if they had a right to choose, but that they might be held strictly to the $2000 damages.

A ruling on this ground would not settle the principle of the covenants, the Constitutional issues, the matters of public policy—which is what all the argument has been about—one way or the other.

If the justices did rule on this ground in the Bryant street cases, they still might—or might not—settle the other issues in the Michigan and Missouri cases.

The covenant cases are before Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Black, Frankfurter, Douglas, Murphy and Burton.

Justices Rutledge and Jackson, who own property that is subject to race covenants, and Reed, who has taken no part in any phase of the cases, stepped off the bench when the hearing began.

Mrs. Hobbs Accuses Laughlin Of 'Husband-Removal' Boast

later that he was 5 feet 10½ inches to 5 feet 11 inches.

Under cross examination the witness revealed he had been unable to identify Laughlin as the man during investigation at police headquarters.

Gertrude Lillian Ford, a nurse who attended Mrs. Hobbs for, what the prosecution charges, was the result of abortion, admitted under cross examination that she later had been given $100 for her services "from Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs."

She had previously testified that she took over the nursing job as a "Good Samaritan" without fee.

Earlier, Mrs. Hobbs denied that her sister, Maybelle, had asked money of Laughlin. The lawyer had declared he had sent $50 on each of two occasions in response to a request from the sister.

Dr. Richard M. Rosenberg, District deputy coroner and personal friend of Laughlin "for the past five years," testified that as a favor to the attorney he examined Mrs. Hobbs "some time in 1947." He said he found she was "two months pregnant," but couldn't recall the month of examination.

The Government will rest its case on Monday, according to Associate Prosecutor Arthur McLaughlin, with the testimony of Mrs. Petrain. The nurse was reported ill yesterday of a spinal injury.

Laughlin had previously reported that Chief of Police Robert J. Barrett would be called as a witness some time next week when the defense opens.

Sets Out for Fish, Gets Duck Instead

York, Nebr. (U.P.).—Mrs. Dorothy Lage, who likes to fish, demonstrated that the hand is quicker than the eye—especially the eye of a wild duck

Sitting on the bank of the Blue River, with her fish line in the water, Mrs. Lange saw a wild duck swimming slowly downstream. As the duck neared the point where her line was in the water, Mrs. Lage gave the pole a quick flip and wrapped the line neatly around its neck.

She asked for brown shoe polish, tooth paste, shaving soap and a styptic pencil, candlesticks for her Christmas tree and waxed paper.

Prodigy Missing Since 'Squabble'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

JACQUELINE HORNER, 14-year-old pianist and movie actress, disappeared Tuesday from the Hollywood home of her mother, Mrs. Clara Horner, but police said yesterday there was no evidence to support a theory of kidnaping or foul play. They attributed the child's actions to a "family squabble."

Writ Is Asked Against ITU

ban on the closed shop by refusing to sign yearly contracts and imposing—as a condition of work—other requirements forbidden by the law.

"Slowdowns" Cited

The petition filed in Indianapolis against the ITU said that strikes or "slowdowns" have occurred on newspapers at more than a dozen cities, including Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City; Hammond, Ind.; Albany, Jamestown and Hempstead, N. Y.; Bartlesville, Okla.; Abilene and San Antonio, Tex.; Allentown and Norristown, Pa., and Knoxville, Tenn.

The petition said "it may be fairly anticipated" that the ITU will pursue alleged unfair labor practices at a score or more other cities, where newspaper contracts have either just expired or will expire shortly.

The court order sought by the NLRB attorney would impose a sweeping set of orders against the union. The ITU and all its officers and agents would be forbidden to:

1. Cause employers to grant a closed shop or to accede to the union-dictated set of employment conditions.
2. Force employers to pay for work not performed ("featherbedding").
3. Force employers to hire only ITU foremen.
4. Deny employers various general rights granted by the Taft-Hartley Act.
5. Engage in, or order or urge any strikes or slowdowns for the purpose of obtaining any of the forbidden objectives listed above.
6. Take any similar action in the nature of a dodge to obstruct the adjudication of the case now pending in Chicago, or to accomplish objectives outlawed by that decision.

Evans filed some 200 pages of supporting exhibits, to reinforce his demand for an injunction.

An NLRB spokesman said the petition was the first filed under the Taft-Hartley Act for an injunction Nation-wide in scope.

Dewey Seeks Presidency

been Henry Wallace's announcement that he would run for President on a third-party ticket. This was something the Dewey people had long feared. Their reasoning was that, with Wallace splitting the Democratic vote, a great many delegates at the Republican National Convention would feel that they could win in November "with anybody."

The Dewey forces have always thought that it would be to their advantage if the fight looked close. The delegates, they figured, would then start worrying about New York and its 47 electoral votes and would be more likely to turn to the man who was twice elected Governor of that State.

Despite all the talk about Dewey's "slipping," he still is widely regarded as the "No. 1 contender" for the GOP nomination, and the "man to beat" at Philadelphia.

Senator Taft late yesterday welcomed the announcement from Albany, saying:

"I think Governor Dewey's announcement is to be commended. The more candidates whose names will be before the convention, the better it will be for the party."

Those who know Taft said that this was something like the handshake that one prizefighter gives another just before the slugging begins.

The Oregon primary, in which there will be a full Dewey slate of delegates, does not come until May 21. The relative strength of Dewey, Stassen and perhaps Eisenhower doubtless will become known before this.

The first of the primaries comes March 9, in New Hampshire, and unless Ike does something to head off the boom for himself, the country is going to learn how he stacks up against Dewey and Stassen. Slates for all three men have been filed in the Granite State.

Wainwright Hopes 'Ike' and 'Mac' Won't Run

Denver, Jan. 16 (AP).—Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, retired, of Bataan and Corregidor fame, voiced the opinion today it would be "a mistake" for either General Eisenhower or General MacArthur to accept presidential nomination if offered to them.

In response to a question from a reporter, Wainwright said both generals "are fine soldiers and I think would be a mistake for them to get into politics. No grand, good soldier ever made a good politician."

Tarantara!

The extraordinary proceedings of the Clegg case came to a fitting close with a statement by Superintendent Barrett commending Patrolman Gibboney for making the arrest. The patrolman had just been exculpated of the charge of illegal arrest and detention. But the decision was 2 to 1, with the police captain and the police inspector voting in favor of exoneration, and the civilian member dissenting. Nevertheless the result was a triumph for Superintendent Barrett, and he celebrated it, as might have been expected, by gloating. He had never disguised his opposition to the trial board probe. And during the hearing he sought to envelope the case in all manner of irrelevancies in which he had the expert aid of the police lawyer. Most of them were at Clegg's expense, but the lawyer sought also to discredit this newspaper, which paid Clegg's legal fees because Clegg is one of its employes. Maybe one of these days an aroused community may join us in thinking that the superintendent has the habit, again illustrated in the reaction to the Clegg verdict, of going too far for comfort.

German Hunger Strikes

According to the latest reports from Germany, about 75,000 urban workers in the Ruhr district are on strike in protest against food shortages, and the head of the German Federation of Trades Unions predicts more strikes and possible riots unless the situation improves. Although Ruhr coal miners are still on the job, the extra rations they receive as a work incentive afford no guarantee against their striking. For, of course, they share their rations with their families and friends. Consequently, as the food situation deteriorates, they too feel the pinch of hunger and grow restive.

No doubt the Communists are making capital out of this situation, regardless of the authenticity of a so-called protocol outlining a Communist program for disrupting Ruhr industry in order to frustrate the Marshall Plan. But, the Communists are not responsible for the food shortages that are the immediate cause of the Ruhr strikes. Neither can responsibility for those shortages be attributed to the inadequacy of the food imports which the occupying powers provide without cost to Germany from their own resources. Moreover, no permanent improvement of the food situation in western Germany can be hoped for merely by stepping up food imports, which are said to be moving according to schedule.

Although German food shortages have been currently aggravated by the recent severe drought, the industrial population has been deprived of homegrown food owing to the refusal of farmers in the occupied zone to exchange their meat, grain, etc., for a virtually worthless currency. As a result, farm surpluses that might have spelled the difference between hunger and decent nourishment for industrial workers have been hoarded, sold in black markets, or exchanged directly for goods in barter transactions.

Bureaucratic efforts to locate and direct domestic food supplies into channels where they are most needed are inevitably ineffective. Indeed, to the extent that they succeed, the incentive to produce food for the market is weakened, if not destroyed. The remedy for this state of affairs lies in reforms that will restore the currency to soundness and revive belief in its power to satisfy wants. That involves much more than a reduction in the inflated volume of money to bring it into better balance with limited supplies of available goods. For unless farmers and other producers are able to buy in the shops and stores of the country the goods they need or want with the marks obtained by selling their own goods, they will continue to hoard or rely on barter. Workers, too, will remain on the job only long enough to earn money to pay for their meager rations at official prices, if goods are lacking to satisfy other less pressing needs.

In short, currency reform and industrial expansion must go hand in hand if occupied Germany is to become self-sustaining and the occupying powers freed from the necessity of importing foodstuffs at their own expense to keep Germans from starving. The framers of the Marshall Plan are fully aware of the nature of the problem and its solution. That is why they propose to bring western Germany within the scope of the ERP. Although its inclusion would require larger shipments from the United States during the next four years than does the present relief program, it would be less expensive in the long run—to say nothing of the beneficial effect on Europe—if it achieved its objective of making Germany independent of further aid after 1952.

Marshall Plan Exports

An article on the Marshall Plan in the current issue of Business Week raises the question whether the United States and western Europe together can find market outlets for the greatly increased volume of exports for which plans are being laid. So far attention has been concentrated chiefly on the feasibility of building up the productive exporting capacity of nations participating in the Marshall Plan sufficiently to make them self-sustaining.

It is, of course, recognized that buyers for these increased exports must be found. And the United States is constantly being told that we must be prepared to receive an increasing volume of imports if the Marshall Plan is to succeed. However, the intensive spadework that has been done by various investigating committees to arrive at estimates of the productive needs and exporting potentialities of Europe has not been supplemented by an equally thorough study of the absorptive capacity of the world markets on which Europe will have to rely for sale of her products. Certainly mere admonitions to buy will not sell goods if the required purchasing power is lacking or the products offered for sale are not suited to the needs or desires of foreign buyers.

For example, the writer of the Business Week article notes that Great Britain proposes to raise her exports of metal products more than 200 per cent above prewar levels; the French are also planning a great expansion of such exports; Germany specializes in metals and machinery, and finally the United States is aiming at far larger export totals in the same lines. The question is, therefore, how the United States and western Europe together can possibly export more than twice as much as they did before the war. Particularly how do they propose to dispose of several times as much machinery, vehicles and metal products as before the war? In the opinion of the writer of the article, the answer is that it cannot be done. Since western Europe and the United States took only one third of the world's exports of manufactured goods before the war, it is hardly conceivable that these areas could dispose of a greatly increased volume of such goods merely by trading with one another. Asia, to be sure, has an immense potential absorptive capacity. But with the Far East improverished by war and torn by civil strife, it will probably be a long time before exports to that part of the world will attain even prewar volume. Trade with Russia and her satellite states will doubtless be limited for some time to come, while other trading areas of the globe normally provide outlets for only a comparatively small proportion of exports of manufactured goods.

Although it seems to us unduly pessimistic to assume on the basis of prewar evidence that Marshall Plan export goals are unattainable within the time limits of that plan, it is undoubtedly true that to achieve those goals, exports from the aided countries will have to be of diversified character, and adapted to the needs and buying capacity of importing countries with low living standards. However, the subsiding of political disturbances that have prevented the peoples of the Far East from expending their production of foods and raw materials greatly needed by the western world will open the way for rapid and progressive increase in the output of goods that can be exchanged for the manufactured products of the Marshall Plan nations as well as the United States.

Question Of Advice

It is difficult to see any logic in President Truman's statement to the effect that a recommendation from him on home rule for the District of Columbia would have had no place in his state-of-the-Union message to Congress. The Constitution says that the President "shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient." Mr. Truman took advantage of this authority to urge immediate statehood for Hawaii and Alaska. Certainly the Capital City ought to have as much demand upon the President's interest as either of those Territories. Yet the President implied that he has no intention of acting on the home-rule problem until a bill is laid on his desk.

A much better procedure, we think, is illustrated by the President's reply to a question at his press conference on the proposed St. Lawrence seaway. Instead of a special message, he said, he was thinking of sending Congress a letter urging passage of the seaway bill. Why should not the Auchincloss-Ball bill creating a new home-rule government for Washington be handled in the same way? When the President's aides and the President himself have had an opportunity to study the bill, an indorsement with or without suggested amendments would have the great value of giving the cause of home rule a boost and of putting the issue on the nonpartisan plane that it ought to occupy. On several occasions the President has reiterated his interest in the restoration of suffrage and good government to the District. We do not see how he can consistently fail to pass along to Congress his advice on an issue of such great importance to the Nation's Capital and of at least considerable importance to the Nation itself.

Promoting UMT

It is easy to understand the criticism that has arisen over some of the methods employed by the Army to further the cause of universal military training. Much of this criticism is solidly grounded in the conviction that no governmental department should be allowed to use public funds to influence the action of Congress. It is true that there is a fine and sometimes indistinguishable line between what constitutes informing the public on a vital issue and what amounts to bringing pressure on legislators. In some cases the former results in the latter. Nevertheless, it seems to us that there is a question as to whether the Army has not overstepped its bounds in several matters on which Secretary Royall was called to testify before the House Executive Expenditures Committee the other day. Specifically, there is room for doubt as to the propriety of such items as the Army's paying the check for a luncheon of a women's advisory group, which Secretary Royall admitted, and the assignment of military personnel to the sole job of making speeches on UMT over the country.

The Army can reply, to be sure, that what it is doing is not basically different from the course followed on other major issues—for example, the current pressure for a larger Air Force, the campaign that led to passage of the unification bill, or, indeed, the enactment of draft legislation in the fateful summer of 1940. Moreover, the Army can say with considerable justification that one of its duties is to champion the military measures it believes important to security. In this connection the experimental UMT project at Fort Knox and the various tours that the Army has sponsored can be defended as necessary to bring about understanding of the character of military training. If, in the considered judgment of the professional men charged with national defense, UMT is a necessity, then they would be derelict in their obligations if they did not make themselves heard. This is a consideration which cannot be discarded lightly.

The issue, as we see it, is not the Army's right or duty to advocate UMT, but rather the measures it uses. Secretary Royall maintains that the Army's action has been in no way illegal and that it has no apology for doing its job. That may be; but in its own interest the Army cannot afford to be insensitive to the fishy smell some of its activities on behalf of UMT are creating. The reaction against what is regarded as a high pressure campaign is likely to militate against consideration of UMT on its merits. Perhaps the answer lies in confining the Army's part of UMT promotion to policy statements and appearances by military personnel only on genuine request. In this connection there are several civilian bodies, among them the able commission headed by Dr. Karl T. Compton, well qualified to take up the cause of UMT and relieve the Army of any propagandistic duty.

Exposing Lies

There is a big field for Voice of America broadcasts in countering with truth the vicious falsehoods about this country that daily are spewn forth from Moscow, Belgrade and other points in Russia's ring of satellites. Hitherto the policy of our foreign information branch has been to present facts about America objectively and to take no notice of the misleading propaganda directed against the United States. Now Undersecretary of State Lovett has announced a new tack. Henceforth our broadcasts and related efforts will attempt to nail and expose lies about the United States whenever they crop up. No other course seems possible if we are to meet the challenge forced upon us in the radio war. The lies are too many and too ugly for them not to gain some credence among the bewildered people of Europe unless positive measures are taken to counteract them.

The new approach undoubtedly represents a concession to the newly won supporters of the information program among the members of Congress who toured Europe this summer. The big danger will be in the temptation to fight fire with fire. In the contest for people's minds, this would be an expensive luxury. Nothing would delight the Kremlin more than to have our propaganda efforts descend to the same level of invective that is the Russian mode. That would result in a cat-and-dog fight we could hardly expect to win. By the same token, nothing could do our cause more harm. If the Voice of America listeners in Europe were led to believe through an exchange of name-calling that our broadcasts were cut from the same cloth as Moscow's, we should soon have no converts at all. Concern for our reputation should place extra importance on the necessity for hewing to the fine line of answering Russian charges without resorting to countercharges. In this battle, truth is our best weapon and we cannot afford to blunt it.

FUGITIVE FROM WINTER

They try to tap the Summer; dreamers all,
They flee from Winter; close their eyes and see
Long vines of sunlight on an orchard-wall,
The emerald fretwork of a leaf-filled tree.
Deaf to the roaring wind, the pounding rain,
They shut themselves indoors and dream of this—
Blue, cloudless days forged in a flawless chain,
A petal breaking from its chrysalis.
Wise fugitive from Winter, they ignore
The barren branches whereon no bird sings;
They see behind their tightly-fastened door
Dark firelight-shadows change to shifting wings.
Lost in their dream, unreconciled to snow,
They hold June's hand, and will not let her go!

Charles Michelson

Charles Michelson's closing days were not spent in loneliness, nor was he dependent on the thoughtfuness of one man for tempting foods, as related by Drew Pearson in The Washington Post of January 13. I am sure his devoted nurse, Miss Anne Reisinger, will testify that friends of his heyday visited him frequently. Some brought him choice morsels; all partook of his liquid hospitality, played bridge, gin rummy, cribbage, dominoes, etc. with him—and ever enjoyed his interesting conversation.

For one ill as long as he was "Mike" was permitted to have few dull moments. For instance, his devoted friend, Harvey Jacob, a prominent member of the Washington bar, was in practically daily attendance. I am told Mr. Jacob played gin rummy with him the very night before he died.

Among those who helped to brighten Charles Michelson's last hours were Chairman J. Howard McGrath of the Democratic National Committee, James A. Farley, Paul Porter, James M. Barnes, Leon Henderson, Herbert Corey, Guy Mason, Richard Seelye Jones, Frank B. Lord, Mrs. Evie ("Chip") Robert, Mrs. Allen T. Goldsborough, jr., Mrs. Neville Gardiner (his niece), Gilbert Redfern, Milton Frank, Harry Slattery, William Janson, Col. Louis Brown, Birge McFall and George Vouros.

A half century and more ago "Mike" and I were fellow reporters—he on the New York American and I on the New York World. We spent several weeks together on Gravesend Bay, Long Island, writing daily reports of Bob Fitzsimmons' preparation for his defense of the world heavyweight boxing championship and then reported how Jeffries knocked him out.

Little did we dream that we would both break into politics—I to become Woodrow Wilson's director of publicity in the 1916 presidential campaign; he Franklin Roosevelt's publicity director in 1932 and 1936. Throughout the years we were warm friends. Not once in the time I visited him at his apartment in the Westchester did I find him alone. Either he was one of four playing bridge or had a partner at gin rummy, dominoes, or cribbage. He may have been a devotee of solitaire; I never caught him at it.

GSI Strike

Not since the day Mrs. Murphy dropped the hundred pancakes has anything flopped with as loud a thud as the current UPWA-CIO fiasco. I have yet to hear a single one of the hundreds of Government employes eating at a GSI cafeteria express any sympathy for the pitifully few workers who listened to the pied piper alarm sounded by their "leaders" who refuse to sign non-Communist affidavits.

To the contrary, I had to read a couple of letters in your newspaper to find any semblance of feeling for the "strikers." Moreover, the placards carried and the scratch sheets handed out by strangers at the doors of Government buildings were so full of falsehoods as to alienate their readers: "Striking for a living wage", "GSI menaces your health", "GSI scabmanned" are examples. All informed persons know that wages are not at issue and that the only menace or scabs defined by our American law would seem to be those afraid to admit their allegiance to a foreign government and not American enough to swear allegiance to the Stars and Stripes.

From it all we can derive one comforting thought: maybe public indignation over these leeching leaders' orders to accept dole will be understood by the strikers, and they will join proud American-led unions.

UMT's Effect

In the great effort being made by the military to secure the adoption of universal military training the most obvious and concrete examples of what we could expect from it are being ignored.

Instead of trying to conjure up a picture of what may happen if we don't have UMT, why don't the proponents point to what will happen if we do have it? The present plight of Germany, Japan, France, Poland and many other of the smaller European nations—all of whom had peacetime conscription for many years—would be our ultimate end. Conscription, as cannot be denied from the evidence presented by these countries—has not meant peace, but war.

Speakers from the Army point to Switzerland (and neglect to mention the others) as proving that conscription can prevent war. However, at a congressional hearing last year our top "brass" admitted that Sweden was kept neutral in both world wars because she had vital minerals which both sides needed and which both bought from her. Switzerland, of course, is the depository for the wealth of the other nations during a war and that, in addition to her inaccessibility, protects Switzerland.

Shouldn't we consider the whole picture in regard to something as foreign to our way of life as UMT? In the light of its effectiveness in other lands, how valuable is it?

Panama Discrimination

I have noted the alarm caused by the Panama National Assembly when it unanimously rejected the Filos-Hines agreement. One of the reasons we had to reject the agreement was our dislike of the treatment the residents of the zone give to both white and colored Panamanians.

There is a difference in salary. A Panamanian earns 50 or 60 cents per hour whereas an American earns $1, $2 or $3 per hour. I was put on the "silver roll" and allowed to trade only at the "silver commissary." We were prohibited to speak Spanish, which is our own language.

Panamanian men are given rough work and earn less than a United States citizen, who works little. A Panamanian cashier girl would earn $60 in a post exchange, while American girls earn $90, $100, or $150 a month.

Why have gold and silver rolls? We Panamanians do not believe in a superior or an inferior race. If no right deal is granted to the natives, there will always be an anti-Yankee feeling.

"Postoffice Remedy"

As President Truman's search for able men to fill top Government positions becomes more desperate it seems surprising that neither he nor his advisers have seen fit to prescribe the "Postoffice remedy" again—that of appointing a career man. It is quite possible that career men who are long accustomed to the headaches and salaries of top jobs could fill those jobs with success equal to that of the outsider whose qualifications and record, though outstanding, may have little relationship to the particular post.

Let us hope that President Truman will again see the light and give the faithful public servant a real chance to serve.

"Future Of The Chest"

It seems to me the Community Chest system could stand a little reexamination at about this point. Could it be that the failure of the last campaign is partly the result of public suspicion that the Chest isn't exactly as advertised?

I heartily indorse The Washington Post editorial of January 13 in its suggestion that objections to the Chest must be answered if the Chest is not to disintegrate.

For many years as a reporter in a Western city, one of my annual chores was to cover the Community Chest campaign. My paper indorsed the Chest, as most newspapers do. I was expected to, and I did, write favorable stories about the drive—as well as innumerable editorials. As an employe, I had to "go along."

I do not contend that the situation in Greater Washington is anything like that in my former home city, but I'll cite that experience:

I found out in the first year that the greater portion of the Chest funds went to the so-called "character-building" agencies and not to agencies which provided relief for the distressed, the sick and the helpless. During the campaign, however, the relief agencies "fronted" for the others. We based our appeal on the idea that a contribution to the Chest was to help the helpless. We always emphasized the fact, as The Washington Post does in its editorial, that the Chest was conceived as a means of correlating the financial drives of all agencies. We didn't define "welfare." We let it be assumed that "welfare" meant "relief."

But we carefully avoided letting the public know that the YMCA and the YWCA and the Camp Fire Girls and the Boy Scouts got the lion's share of the money, while the missions and the strictly relief agencies got the leavings.

And, of course, I discovered immediately that the bland announcement that one could allocate his individual donation to one particular agency was a great joke. It didn't mean a thing. The allotments to the various agencies were unchanged, regardless.

Again, I say that the Washington situation may not be the same as it was at home, but not in 10 years as a newspaperman in intimate touch with the Chest agencies did I discover that the "character-building" agencies ever did more than flutter their wings over anybody who might really need their help but couldn't afford it.

I would be interested in seeing printed the allocations by agencies in the Washington Chest. I would also be interested in knowing just how many underprivileged children (and adults) are enjoying the facilities of the so-called "character-building" agencies—or are they publicly supported private clubs as they were at home?

FORMER REPORTER.
Washington.

I believe that the Community Chest has run aground on the rock of public opinion. As a plain American woman who considers the welfare of her neighbors a personal trust, I have been both enlightened and disillusioned by needless and extravagant activities covered by the Chest funds. This criticism I also apply to the American Red Cross. In the case of the latter, it is my opinion that the good accomplished by the Red Cross is much overstressed by the bureaucracy, and the waste of public moneys is like chaff thrown to the north wind.

Anyone can see the indifference to really beneficial results from expenditure of Chest funds that abounds in Washington. The American people acknowledge the need for this collection agency for welfare projects, but it is argued that supervision should be maintained over the use of donations. Retrenchment does not only begin at home, but it can, by insistence be carried into welfare agencies.

Selection For College

By Malvina Lindsay

Pocketbook Test

WITH MORE and more boys and girls dead set on going to college, the question, "Which shall go?" becomes more pressing. Before the GI campus invasion this was determined largely by parents' bank rolls. Now in a few years Uncle Sam will finish educating his veterans. What then? Will the traditional Joe College, on allowance from Dad, again take over?

It looks now as if another campus revolution would be on by then. Several things point to this. One is the proposal of the President's Commission on Higher Education to equalize educational opportunity. It would provide through Federal aid a far-reaching system of scholarships, fellowships and grants in aid to especially deserving sons and daughters of the three fourths or more families financially unable to send their children to college.

Another indication that the purposeful campus atmosphere the GI students inaugurated may remain is a growing feeling that students should not occupy parking space in college unless they make the most of their privileges. Also the trend in colleges and high schools toward mixed work and study programs is making for more realistic campus life.

IN A CONGRESS that has dallied over granting Federal aid even of the most urgent kind to the Nation's schools, the prospect isn't bright for the President's commission getting the 135 million dollars it wants for 1948-49 for its college aid-to-the-worthy plan. Yet there is the precedent of the GI Bill of Rights, which is costing a billion dollars a year, and eventually some followup on this is likely. A talking point is the potential loss in mental skills, invention and leadership in a country in which only 16 per cent of the college age population is in college. With competition among nations becoming more of brain than of brawn, can this country afford not to explore to the fullest its human assets?

Yet some believe there is such a thing as too much college education. Just as the President's commission has been urging that more Americans be enabled to go to college—it would like to see college enrollment doubled by 1960—Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the George Washington University, has warned of the social and economic loss of carrying deadweight college students.

Dr. Marvin holds that no youth should have the right to a college education unless "the years he spends in college will teach him to work harder and to greater social purpose than if he were to spend the same amount of time in an apprenticeship in some other occupation." He warns that you "can't fasten a $50,000 education on a $5 boy," that it is social waste to try to do so. He also feels that too many students loaf their way through college, while promising students can't get in. He would have colleges make selections with more care, thus making their services available to those who will profit most.

DR. MARVIN and the President's commission arrive at the same destination—helping the deserving. The commission's scholarship aid would go only to students who could meet tests of ability, character and responsibility. Dr. Marvin also would have the Government set up competitive scholarships to enable those with high ability, yet unable to finance themselves, to go to college. But he would go further and also insure room at college for the fit by weeding out the unfit.

Increasing fees and living costs are making college more and more of a luxury. It was recently estimated that in New York State a college student's expenses were $1500—excluding clothing and transportation. Clothes for college students, especially girls, are a proportionately greater expense every generation. Fashion promotion of the college wardrobe and the tempo of campus social life are constantly making college education a greater drain on parents' pocketbooks.

If rationing of college education according to purse (as even primary education used to be rationed) continues, higher education is likely to become ingrown, campuses to get more social and juvenile. Some way must be found to make real the democratic boast that college education is possible to any American who wants it. But many taxpayers would add the qualification, "and who deserves it."

Arab Accessories

A news dispatch from London, dated January 11, informs us that three British former Indian Army officers had left by air to fight with the Arabs in Palestine. A Foreign Office spokesman is quoted as stating that there was nothing that the British government could do to prevent private citizens from leaving the country to join the Arab forces.

In a strictly moral sense, the failure of the British government to act in this matter makes Great Britain an accessory to Arab defiance of the United Nations decision to partition Palestine.

A more serious and immediate result is the establishment by Great Britain of a precedent which could be cited by Russia's Balkan puppets for the formation of so-called "international brigades" to assist the Greek guerillas.

It is to be hoped that the British government will realize the serious implications of this case and take immediate, positive action to affirm her intention to prevent defiance by her citizens of the authority of the United Nations.

Loyalty Procedure

A Communication

IT IS QUITE clear that the Federal Loyalty Review Board has sincerely sought to devise procedures which will uncover disloyal employes, and at the same time avoid injustice.

I regret to say that I do not believe that the procedures adopted by the Loyalty Review Board are well designed to serve these purposes. It is true that under these procedures numerous appeals are available to employes. In fact, appeal is loaded upon appeal, almost to the point of exhaustion of the individual accused and the Government of which is concerned.

But nowhere in the elaborate labyrinth of procedure, devised by the board is there opportunity for the accused employe to come to grips with the real evidence against him. He may be judged on a record consisting largely or wholly of the unsworn statements of people whose names are not disclosed and who are not subjected to cross examination. In this situation the helpless accused and his counsel must of necessity have the feeling of futility of the victim of a nightmare, beset by nameless and shapeless terrors.

EXPERIENCED lawyers know how difficult it is to evaluate the testimony of witnesses. Two people hearing the same statements or viewing the same events will get quite different impressions from them, and their versions of what was said or what happened will differ widely.

Through hundreds of years our legal system has developed certain techniques for testing the truth of statements made, and of evaluating their significance. The fundamental safeguards provided by our legal procedure are that the evidence given by witnesses should be subjected to the tests of confrontation and cross examination: in other words, that the evidence be given in the presence of the accused so that he may probe the accuracy and weight of the testimony by the process of cross examination.

In fact, the rights of confrontation and cross-examination are considered so fundamental to the liberties of the individual that the sixth amendment of the Federal Constitution as well as the constitutions of 47 of the States guarantee these rights in all criminal prosecutions.

THE LOYALTY Review Board, however, although expressing regret at the necessity of so deciding, determined that these two principles need not be observed in proceedings to determine the loyalty of Federal employes. The reasons which it states for this decision are, first, that the investigations could not be made without the assistance of the FBI; that the FBI secures the facts for its reports from confidential sources; and that these confidential sources would not be available to the FBI if their identity was disclosed. Second, the board states that the Government is entitled to discharge any employe for any reasons which seem sufficient to it; and that, accordingly, the strict legal rights of accused persons need not be observed.

I do not doubt that the Government, unless statutes otherwise provide, has the power to dismiss employes for any reason or for no reason at all. But a scheme of Government employment built on such a premise would represent a return to the spoils system and to the days when employes were regarded as having no rights or equities whatever. More than that, the Government service would be quickly demoralized if Government employes could be dismissed on suspicion of disloyalty without adequate opportunity to refute the charges made against them.

The quality of Government is of critical concern to all of us; and the quality of Government depends upon the quality of Government employes. Government service should attract and not repel people who have convictions, initiative and daring. Many of the people who have these characteristics are not strict conformists; and since they do not conform completely to the prevailing views they are constantly in danger of being suspect. Government service should not provide merely a haven for mediocrity. It should include people of differing views with sufficient conviction to assert those views. It is from this conflict of opinion that sound and realistic Government policy is distilled.

BUT REGARDLESS of these considerations, our Government should not deny to any of its citizens, including its employes, a completely adequate opportunity to defend themselves against charges of disloyalty which if sustained would seriously impair their opportunity to earn a livelihood and cause great suffering and hardship.

The other point made by the Loyalty Review Board in support of its conclusion that employes may be convicted on evidence given by absent witnesses who are not subject to cross examination is, in substance, that there can be no loyalty program unless this denial of admittedly fundamental rights is permitted. In fact, the chairman of the board bluntly states that the choice is between this kind of procedure and no loyalty program at all. Given this choice, the conclusion follows with the automatic operation of a slot machine: If this is the only way that we can have a loyalty program, we must accept this way, because we must have a loyalty program.

But I suggest that the choice is not so restricted. I have no doubt whatever that the FBI is sufficiently skillful to uncover evidence reasonably indicative of disloyalty where there is a basis for reasonable suspicion, and that it can do so even although such evidence has to be subjected to the constitutional tests of confrontation and cross examination.

This is a porblem which is familiar to investigative agencies, and certainly very familiar to the FBI. Probably the FBI has operatives in Government agencies, Communists Party cells, and the like. Without doubt, the unveiling of these operatives would destroy their usefulness. There is every reason for the FBI and Government agencies to use the advice and information of such informers, as leads to investigate employes thought to be disloyal.

But it is difficult to believe that once those leads have been obtained, evidence and witnesses could not be secured that could be disclosed and subjected to cross examination without embarrassing the operations of the FBI or other security agencies. The FBI and police forces constantly have problems of this sort, for example, in connection with narcotics, treason, sedition and immigration prosecutions. It would be much easier, of course, to convict persons of these crimes if the witnesses against them did not have to be produced and subjected to cross examination.

But we should not permit ourselves to take short cuts in the field of civil rights and human liberties. Adequate protection of the people and their Government is possible within the traditional limits of due process, and with scrupulous regard of traditional procedural requirements. That assumption, indeed, lies at the heart of our democratic system.

THE LOYALTY Review Board, in the thoughtful and conscientious statement of its chairman, discussing the problem of confrontation and cross examination, said: "If further experience shall change our minds in this regard, we shall not hesitate to so report." I sincerely hope that the members of the board will reconsider this problem and establish the principle that although unidentified and confidential informants may be used in the investigative process, the record before the boards and officials who pass on the loyalty cases should be confined to the testimony of witnesses taken in the presence of the suspected employe and his counsel and subjected to cross examination.

If this is done, the officials who must decide the loyalty cases can act with vigor and assurance. The evidence before them will not be discounted, as the Loyalty Review Board suggests it will be, because it has not been tested by cross examination; and the American people will be assured that innocent Government officials will not be convicted of disloyalty on the basis of hearsay, gossip and hysterical or vindictive testimony.

This proposal is not critical of the FBI. The standards of an investigative agency cannot and should not determine the quality of evidence upon which judges must insist. The FBI's job, as Mr. Hoover has repeatedly insisted, is not to judge or to recommend, but to accumulate a mass of information for sifting, refining and weighing by the officials who are charged with judging the case.

In the sensitive area of civil rights and freedom of opinion, we must not depress the values of democracy or its stern requirements. To do this in any segment of our life—whether it be Government service or criminal procedure—is to strike a blow against the very system of democracy and individual liberty which we are seeking to support.

Veto of Bill Cutting Taxes 6.2 Billion Hinted by Snyder

1 (first Knutson bill) and also to veto its successor bill . . . are controlling today. . . .

Supports Truman Proposal

"As the President has recommended, any revenue loss from tax adjustments to relieve taxpayers from the impact of high cost of living should be recouped by increasing the taxes on corporate profits."

The brickbats started to fly right after his opening statement. Representative Harold Knutson (R., Minn.) said Snyder had a "weak case." He charged the President's bill was "hatched in Hollywood."

"That's Ridiculous!"

"That's a ridiculous statement!" said Snyder.

(Represenative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.) introduced a bill similar to the Truman plan last session, but White House aides said Mr. Truman didn't know about Mrs. Douglas' bill.)

Knutson called the $40 plan a political service designed purely to keep Mr. Truman in the White House.

"Is the Knutson bill nonpolitical?" snapped Snyder.

Before Snyder and Knutson called it a draw, there were such exchanges as this:

Knutson—What makes inflation?

Snyder—High prices.

Knutson — What makes high prices?

Snyder—Raises in prices.

Before the day was out Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart (R., Calif.) was calling the President's plan a "10 cents a day" bill.

Citing higher benefits in the lower brackets under the President's plan, Synder came back with: "If this is a dime measure then the Knutson bill is a nickel bill."

At the outset, the Treasury Secretary seemed reserved in his defense of the President's "cost of living" proposals but warmed up as Republicans lit into it.

"I don't believe you are very enthusiastic about it," said Representative Tom Jenkins (R., Ohio).

"That's your statement — not mine," replied Snyder.

He got little help from Representative Robert L. Doughton (N. C.), ranking Democrat on the committee, who declined Wednesday to introduce the President's measure. Doughton said, "Frankly, I'm not impressed with either plan"—the President's or Knutson's.

Reminding Snyder that the Administration supported repeal of the excess profits tax two years ago, Doughton proceeded to argue for split income tax benefits for husbands and wives. Doughton said it seemed to him the 800-million-dollar revenue loss from extending the community property tax principle to all married couples could be "made up" elsewhere.

"Inequity" for Early Correction

Snyder agreed "that's an inequity that should be corrected at an early date" but said he couldn't support any change that would reduce the total of revenues.

Representative Dingell, who introduced the President's bill in the House, later tackled Snyder on the same point. Dingell said he figured community property benefits could be included in his bill without reducing revenues by one of two methods: (1) increasing the 75 per cent excess profits tax to make up the loss or (2) lowering the $40 credit to $30.

Snyder commented reluctantly. He said it "wouldn't be my recommendation to start making any tax adjustments."

Snyder stressed throughout his testimony that the President's proposals were a "temporary" device to hold revenue where it is and still give some cost of living relief. He said that once the inflation emergency passed both the $40 credit and the excess profits tax should be abandoned in favor of a general tax adjustment.

Bill to Reach House Next Week

The GOP-run Ways and Means Committee plans to conclude hearings Monday and vote out the Knutson bill, with possibly minor alterations, on Tuesday or Wednesday. It will reach the House floor about the middle of the following week.

Dingell and some other Administration Democrats may move to substitute the President's bill in committee, but Republicans hold an undisputed margin to kill it. Democratic strategy on the House floor will be to reoffer the President's plan, probably in compromise form, on a motion to recommit the Knutson bill. The Democratic compromise is virtually certain to oinclude split income benefits for husbands and wives.

Three Policemen Are Cleared Of Clegg Arrest Charges

board were made up of civilians "not subject to the orders of the chief of police."

Investigator Ennis and Sergeant Kapsol issued a joint statement of gratification over being cleared of "false charges."

Ennis confirmed a report he had handed in his resignation on December 1. He said he had contemplated the resignation for some time, and that the move was "prompted in part by the action of one particular newspaper in the city, The Washington Post, which reveals the unappreciative, uncooperative manner they view a police officer's duty to be."

The trial ordered by District Commissioners and technically presented in the name of Police Superintendent Barrett against his own recommendation to drop the case, ran four days. The board began consideration of a ruling at 3 p. m. Thursday and reported its decision to Chief Barrett yesterday morning. On releasing the ruling, Major Barrett also issued the following statement:

"In connection with the announcement of the verdict in the Clegg case I desire to state that I am pleased that the officers have been found not guilty by the board.

Nothing But Praise

"We are not disturbed by the dissenting vote of one member where he voted guilty on two counts against the arresting officer. I have nothing but the highest praise for Private Gibboney. I intend to officially commend him for his actions in this case.

"Several serious cases are recalled in the history of this department were sex offenses have been committed against women of this city. I have in mind particularly the Catoe case. It is firmly believed that the arrest of Clegg by Private Gibboney and the fact that an automobile came by just at the time, prevented a case of rape. I invite attention to my testimony before the trial board and I still feel the same way about the case.

"If the officers of our department are to be handicapped and prevented from making arrests upon probable cause that felonies are about to be committed, then we would be working at a disadvantage toward trying to prevent crime.

"The prevention of crime is one of our duties and responsibilities the same as detection of the crime after it has been committed. I wish to assure the public we intend to continue to discharge our responsibilities of carrying out the public service which is expected of us."

Died in Electric Chair

Jarvis Roosevelt Catoe—referred to in the police chief's statement—was a Negro who died in the electric chair here for the rape slaying of Mrs. Rose Abramowitz in March, 1941. He confessed to six other sex murders.

Chief Barrett expressed the belief that the arrest of Clegg had prevented a rape, when called to the stand by the defense last Wednesday. He was the only witness to offer such testimony. Assistant Corporation Counsel Oliver Gasch, prosecuting the case, pointed out in his final argument that there'd been no evidence of a crime, major or minor, committed by Clegg at the time of his arrest. At the most, the prosecutor contended, the arresting officer had a suspicion of a misdemeanor, which did not warrant an arrest of Clegg without a warrant.

The testimony was also developed that at the time of the incident, the police had set up a lure, with one of the previously accosted women serving as bait. Private Gibboney and another policeman were nearby hiding.

Result of Two Complaints

The police trap was the result of accosting complaints by two waitresses at Ceres' 1309 E st. nw. They are Mrs. Viola Haynes, 19 of 1706 F st. nw. and Mrs. Ethel Click Owens of 150 12th st. ne.

Mrs. Haynes—according to testimony developed at the trial—offered to serve as lure to see if the police could capture the molester who had twice that week accosted her between the streetcar stop at 13th and F sts. nw., and the restaurant on E st.

She walked down 13th st. without incident the first time she tried it that morning. Her husband then picked her up, drove her around the block, and a second time, she started walking down 13th st. from F to E, on the west side of the street.

At approximately the same time, Clegg was returning to his job at The Washington Post, 1337 E st. nw., from his lunch period, according to his testimony. He works on a night shift, and took his lunch half hour at 5:30 a. m., Clegg said. That morning, he had passed up his usual sandwich, and had been watching the goldfish in the window of Gude's, in the 1200 block of F st. nw., to pass the time. He was walking down 13th st. on the east side, and crossed diagonally across the street behind Mrs. Haynes, when she became frightened and ran, according to her testimony.

Saw Nothing Wrong

It was at this point that Gibboney emerged from his hiding place and arrested Clegg. Under questioning before the trial board, Mrs. Haynes said she did not see Clegg do anything wrong, nor did she hear him say anything. Both she and the other previously accosted woman, Mrs. Owens, testified before the board that Clegg did not resemble the molester they had seen during the week before August 2.

Attorney Robb, counsel for Clegg, issued the following comment on the verdict:

"I feel it unnecessary to add much to the letter I sent the District Commissioners on December 1 and the telegram I sent them December 4. These messages present the matter adequately.

"James O'D. Moran, in his dissent, came to the conclusion I am satisfied would have been reached unanimously by a board of civilians not subject to the orders of the chief of police.

derous attack on Julius Willie

"Major Barrett has made slan- Clegg. He has accused him of molesting white women with intent to commit rape and has assailed his character in general.

"Clegg's innocence in the particular case involved has been attested by the women brought in as police witnesses. They have testified that he was not the man and did not even resemble the man who accosted them.

"His general character is best evidenced by his three years of service in the war during which he received five campaign stars and a Good Conduct Medal for a perfect conduct rating.

"These inexcusable attacks on Clegg raised issues wholly irrelevant to the central issue of whether or not Clegg was illegally detained and mistreated by the police. The record of Major Barrett himself would have been more relevant to the proceedings."

Letter Urged Trial

The letter and telegram referred to by Attorney Robb urged the Commissioners to try the accused policemen before a civilian trial board, on the grounds that no board drawn from the ranks of the police department could fairly try a policeman accused of actions approved by the chief of police. Major Barrett had publicly declared himself in favor of arrests and detentions on the open charge of "investigation."

Attorney Robb also charged, in the telegram to the Commissioners, that "Barrett is determined there shall be no conviction in the Clegg case."

"To accomplish his (Barrett's) purpose, he is making desperate efforts to pin something on Clegg, or at least to discredit him by propaganda, insinuation, and abuse," Robb wired.

As a matter of course, police trial boards are made up of two police officials and an assistant corporation counsel. The case is routinely prosecuted by another assistant corporation counsel. On the protest of defense counsel that the corporation counsel himself had been assigned by the Commissioners to prosecute this case, the Commissioners selected Moran as the third member of the board. The Commissioners turned down Robb's request for an all civilian board.

was the type who would take reprisals for incurring his displeasure," and "a feeling of being watched all the time."

He admitted that Murphy had "never cursed him," and he had never heard Murphy "curse anyone," but said he had heard such allegations and believed them to be true. Included in the 10 specifications against Murphy are charges of abusive language.

Litteral, Battalion Chief Joseph E. Suit, and Battalion Chief Harold F. Harding, the latter on the witness stand for the third day, testified that Murphy's system of transferring firemen from one department to another undermined morale and efficiency.

Under cross-examination by defens counsel Martin F. O'Donoghue, they could name no specific acts, or places or persons involved.

Suit declared, "When you lower morale you lower efficiency." Then it goes contrary to Army technique," countered O'Donoghue, O'Donoghue, "You have a better army when they're griping."

The testimony on efficiency given by one prosecution witness, Capt. Charles L. Galer, was termed without foundation by Board Chairman Austin F. Canfield.

After Galer finished his testimony on the effect of transfers, Canfield declared, "Up to this time there is no evidence of inefficiency from this witness—either specific or otherwise."

Both Litteral and Harding stated that Murphy had never officially announced a rotation policy, and they said if he had the men would have accepted it. Harding, testifying that some men were transferred three and four times within 18 months, said "those men were on a merry-go-round, rotating at a furious pace."

Harding admitted that he approved reports stating efficiency of his units was satisfactory, and said the reports were true as he had no specific incidents of low morale.

On Wednesday, Harding had testified that while the rotation program impaired efficiency and morale, it did not affect general firefighting.

Yesterday's dramatic testimony drew a capacity audience, including Police Chief Robert J. Barrett. On one occasion, Canfield had to warn the audience to refrain from comment and at another point a youth was ejected for making remarks.

One development in the case yesterday was the possibility that Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, who touched off the charges against Murphy last June at a House subcommittee hearing, may testify for the prosecution at the trial and thereby possibly evade charges himself.

When the investigation began, the District Commissioners declared that if the charges against Murphy were not substantiated, Conroy himself would face trial.

William J. Rowan, Conroy's attorney and now present at the trial as personal counsel for prosecution witnesses, said he believes if Conroy testifies he could not in turn be prosecuted because of the immunity order.

The trial recessed to 10 a. m. Monday at Municipal Center, when Maher will start what is expected to be the final day of prosecution. Defense said it intends to conclude its side of the case next week.

Postman's Wife Rings Bell In Pay Inquiry in Senate

"what is expected to be" an ultimate 40 per cent increase in the Postoffice Department payments.

Throughout most of the day the subcommittee heard from members of Congress who dropped in to speak briefly in support of the measure and officers of postal employes' unions. These men, who came here from New York and California, reiterated that:

1. Pay of postal employes can't be tied to the cost of operating the Postoffice Department but must be tied to costs of living.

2. A $1000 raise in pay would afford less than $800 to take home, while an $800 raise would result in about $600.

3. Most postal clerks and carriers have used up their savings and are now forced to do outside work in their own time or to have their wives find jobs.

4. The present $2100 entrance salary is insufficient to attract the caliber of young men needed in the Postal service.

Among all these statistics and logic, Mrs. Bolen walked to the committee table, slender and brunette and nervous as a pudding. The audience hummed with comment and Langer and Chavez took a firmer grip on their cigars. Mrs. Bolen sat down and began talking as matter-of-factly as her nerves would permit.

She presented her budget and told the committee she did all her own work, including the laundry for five, in the effort to make her husband's salary cover it. She explained wistfully that her family had become so weary of hamburger she was ashamed to serve it. Chavez asked her how much liver cost and she said "Oh, we could never afford that" but she had to pay 77 cents a pound for stew meat.

"I get so nervous," she said, jumping off the subject, "that I forget everything I wanted to say."

Chavez then asked how old her boys were and she started with the oldest; he was 11. The New Mexican almost dropped his cigar.

"You mean," he said in the high voice of incredulity, "that you have a boy 11 years old?"

She explained she had married "very young" and Chavez said "you must have." Somehow, in conformity with tradition, she managed to have the last word when Langer asked for her address—for the committee's records of course.

Soviet Trade Moves Held Impractical

Moscow, Jan. 16 (AP).—Pravda complained today at Soviet trade organizations are sending open sandals and canvas shoes to frozen Khaarovsk. The Communist newspaper wanted to know why.

Moreover, Pravda said, regions are not producing the goods their people need most. For instance, the article said, Siberian Khabarovsk, known for its subzero temperatures, is manufacturing light summer clothing or cotton fabrics "only because they are easier to sew."

Final Meyer Article To Appear Tomorrow

The sixth and final article by Agnes E. Meyer will appear in The Washington Post tomorrow.

U. N. Board Gives Reds 10 Days to Answer Bid

Seoul, Jan. 16.—The United Nations Commission on Korea decided today informally to give Col. Gen. Terenty F. Shtikov, Russian commander in northern Korea, 10 days in which to reply to a letter inviting him to cooperate in holding elections throughout Korea and creating an independent government.

What the commission will do if General Shtikov turns down its request for cooperation has not yet been discussed at the commission meetings, but the view prevalent today seemed to be that in such an event it will proceed to hold an election of a National Assembly in southern Korea and declare this Assembly to be representative of the whole country.

Accent on Youth

Relationship of Church, State To Schools Will Be Discussed

"The Relationship of Church and State to the Public Schools" will be discussed by Dr. Richard Kennan, of the National Education Association, tomorrow at 6 p. m. before the Young Adults Forum of Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G st. nw.

The Citizenship Committee of the Golden Rule Christian Endeavor Union will sponsor a fellowship service tomorrow at 4 p. m. at the Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A., 9th st. and Rhode Island ave., nw.

A corps of 19 volunteers from the First Congregational Church here recently helped the Church World Service Center at New Windsor, Md., achieve its biggest processing day, with 54,371 pounds of relief materials turned out.

The Congress Heights Baptist Church, Esther and Brothers pl. se., now has a Junior Choir for ages 9 to 12, and a Youth Choir for ages 13-20, meeting for rehearsals on Thursday at 7 p. m. and 8 p. m. respectively. Mrs. Charlotte Watkins directs the Youth Choir, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Forman, the Junior Choir. There is also an adult choir, which rehearses Thursdays at 8 p. m.

Meanwhile, the Washington City Presbytery's Christian Education Committee, issued a statement of principle on the issue of separation of church and state. The Rev. Stewart McKenzie, pastor of Western Presbyterian Church, is committee chairman. It declared in part:

"We in America take pride in the fact that our Nation was founded on deep-rooted religious and moral truths, and that it derives the fibre of its character, and its claim to greatness, from its continuing adherence to those truths. From the early days also there were established the principles of religious liberty, and the separation of church and state.

"Our fathers held that the church should not dictate to the state in civil matters, nor the state interfere with the church or with individuals in the free exercise of worship, belief or conduct, except where that exercise might endanger the common good. Such religious liberty is the foundation of all free humanity, and guarantee of all other freedoms."

The Rev. Thomas M. Steen, director of the Federation of Churches' Christian Education Department, will speak twice tomorrow at Petworth Methodist Church, Grant Circle and New Hampshire ave. nw. He will address the Youth Fellowship groups at 7 p. m. on "Interpreting the Youth Oslo Conference," and preach at the worship service at 8 p. m. on "Disciplines for a New Day."

Three Choirs to Sing

Many in Congress Active in Religious Work

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Former clergymen and active Bible class teachers are numbered among Congressmen.

Moreover, many Congressmen—without fanfare or personal publicity—attend the weekly breakfast prayer sessions in the Senate Restaurant—on Wednesdays for Senators and on Thursdays for Representatives. The prayer sessions are sponsored by the National Committee for Christian Leadership.

"It's encouraging to see so many Senators and Congressmen active in religious work and putting their Christian principles to work for world peace, foreign relief and other vital issues," says Abraham Vereide, executive secretary of the National Committee for Christian Leadership.

Typical Congressman with a ministerial background is white-haired 80-year-old Representative Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.), House Foreign Affairs Chairman.

Representative Eaton was ordained to the Baptist ministry in 1893, and for 26 years served such pulpits as Madison Avenue Church, New York City; Euclid Avenue Church, Cleveland, Ohio; Bloor Street Church, Toronto, Canada, and others.

His nonpartisan attitude on foreign policy is well-expressed in a statement he gave newsmen last December 24.

At that time, he warned that both parties had better get together on "at least the principles of a world policy—not Republican, not Democratic—but American."

"I would no more formulate a strictly Republican (European recovery) program than undertake to fight a prize fight with one hand tied behind my back," he said then, adding that "I suppose that brands me as a bad partisan."

Representative Eaton was a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations Conference at San Francisco in 1945 and to the UNO General Assemblies in London in 1945 and in New York in 1946.

Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) expresses his Christian convictions on the House floor and in speeches before churches and other religious organizations throughout the country.

He has said repeatedly that Christianity is the only foundation stone that can keep our world from falling apart because it believes in the worth of the human individual and "seizes and builds on the possibilities of backward peoples."

Dr. Judd, a native Nebraskan, was a Congregational medical missionary in China from 1925 to 1931 and from 1934 to 1938, when he began a two-year speaking tour of America, urging a boycott of Japanese goods and embargo on shipment of war materials to Japan.

Representative Adam Clayton Powell, jr. (D., N. Y.) has been minister of the Abyssinian Baptist Church since 1937, with a membership of over 10,000. Representative Dewey Short (R., Mo.) was formerly a Methodist minister.

Among the Bible class teachers on Capitol Hill are Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) a Methodist; Senator Clyde R. Hoey (D., N. C.), another Methodist; Representative Brooks Hays (D., Ark.) and Representative J. Percy Priest (D., Tenn.), and others.

Representative Priest is chairman of the House Breakfast prayer group, ushers and frequently teaches Bible classes at First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., where President Truman worships locally. Congressman Priest's wife also teaches a Bible class at First Church. The Sparkman Bible Class of Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw., honors the Alabama Senator and its teacher, Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.), is chairman of the Senate Breakfast Group.

Congressional Secretary Offered Prayer in House

The Rev. Donald Scott McAlpine, secretary to Representative Ellsworth Buck (R., N. Y.), once delivered prayers at the opening of the House session in the absence of Chaplain James Shera Montgomery. That was probably the first time that a congressional secretary ever acted in such a capacity.

McAlpine served for 12 years as pastor of the First Baptist Church at Port Washington, Long Island, and for 3½ years as pastor of the Mariners Harbor Baptist Church on Staten Island. Rejected for the Navy chaplaincy in 1942, he left his church to become personnel manager for a shipyard, and in 1945 assumed his present position. He preaches frequently, is a member of West Washington Baptist Church in Georgetown. He has been invited to speak in his old Port Washington Church tomorrow.

New Protestant Group Draws KC Criticism

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Formation of a Protestant organization for separation of church and state has drawn varied reaction in church circles.

(Spokesmen for the "Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State," had said they were concerned about the presence of a United States Ambassador (Myron Taylor) at the Vatican, but had no purpose of criticizing or opposing "the teaching or internal practices of the Roman Catholic Church or any other."

Sharp criticism of the new organization came from the Knights of Columbus through its Supreme Knight, John E. Swift of New York City.

Sees Patriotism Questioned

In a statement issued through the Chancery Office of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York, Swift said the new group had questioned the patriotism of "any citizen, Catholic, Jew or Protestant or nonbeliever who dares to disagree with the organization's biased and inaccurate interpretation of the First Amendment."

"We venture the opinion," the statement declared, "that this new organization will fall of its own weight because, despite its disavowal of anti-Catholicism, it is loaded with an intolerance generally unacceptable to the American people as a whole."

Msgr. John J. Russell, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, said:

"As a Catholic, I don't care whether Myron Taylor goes to the Vatican or not. As an American, I certainly feel we should have some person at what is frequently called 'the listening post of the world.'

"But it would be a distinct loss if our country were to be cut off from a valuable source of information regarding conditions throughout the world."

Dawson Airs Views

Dr. J. M. Dawson, executive secretary of the United States Office of Baptist Public Relations and who was named recording secretary of the organization for church and state separation, Monday aired his views at the Seventh-Day Adventist Theological Seminary in Takoma Park, Md.

"Where there are state churches and a church state, such as in Europe, religion has lost its effectiveness," he said. "Religion must be voluntary. It must be a personality—transforming force as well as a social-transforimng force. The large, almost universally empty churches which I saw during my trip to Europe last summer are mute testimony to the failure of the state church and the church state."

Dr. Dawson was introduced by Dr. Frank Yost, associate secretary of the religious liberty department, general conference of Seventh-day Adventists. Also on the platform was the Rev. O. E. Rebok, seminary president.

Flooded With Messages

Offices of the new church and state separation group in the new Baptist headquarters at 1628 16th st. nw., have been flooded with letters, telegrams and telephone calls about the new organization. Dr. Dawson said that while most of the comment to date has been favorable, the organization is expecting criticism. "But we can disagree agreeably," he said.

Rabbi Morris Pickholz, spiritual leader of the Washington Highlands Jewish Center, 100 Atlantic ave. se., commented:

"We have always felt that the ideal of the separation of church and state has been one of the most important principles of our constitution. That ideal in its fullest implications should be carefully guarded and its perpetuation should be the objective of each and every loyal American.

"We contend that the appointment of Mr. Taylor as Ambassador to the Vatican is in direct violation of that principle. We are therefore fully in accord with this new organization and we commend their action."

[Myron Taylor is an Episcopalian. Editor's note.]

7 TERRIBLE PLAGUES COMING?
Waters of oceans, seas, rivers and drinking reservoirs turned to blood, a painful sore afflicts the human race, a withering and prostrating heat wave, dense darkness, most terrible war of all history, earthquake more disastrous than ever before, hail stones weighing more than fifty pounds.
When and upon whom will these plagues fall?

Relationship of Church, State To Schools Will Be Discussed

"The Relationship of Church and State to the Public Schools" will be discussed by Dr. Richard Kennan, of the National Education Association, tomorrow at 6 p. m. before the Young Adults Forum of Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G st. nw.

The Citizenship Committee of the Golden Rule Christian Endeavor Union will sponsor a fellowship service tomorrow at 4 p. m. at the Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A., 9th st. and Rhode Island ave., nw.

A corps of 19 volunteers from the First Congregational Church here recently helped the Church World Service Center at New Windsor, Md., achieve its biggest processing day, with 54,371 pounds of relief materials turned out.

The Congress Heights Baptist Church, Esther and Brothers pl. se., now has a Junior Choir for ages 9 to 12, and a Youth Choir for ages 13-20, meeting for rehearsals on Thursday at 7 p. m. and 8 p. m. respectively. Mrs. Charlotte Watkins directs the Youth Choir, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Forman, the Junior Choir. There is also an adult choir, which rehearses Thursdays at 8 p. m.

Meanwhile, the Washington City Presbytery's Christian Education Committee, issued a statement of principle on the issue of separation of church and state. The Rev. Stewart McKenzie, pastor of Western Presbyterian Church, is committee chairman. It declared in part:

"We in America take pride in the fact that our Nation was founded on deep-rooted religious and moral truths, and that it derives the fibre of its character, and its claim to greatness, from its continuing adherence to those truths. From the early days also there were established the principles of religious liberty, and the separation of church and state.

"Our fathers held that the church should not dictate to the state in civil matters, nor the state interfere with the church or with individuals in the free exercise of worship, belief or conduct, except where that exercise might endanger the common good. Such religious liberty is the foundation of all free humanity, and guarantee of all other freedoms."

The Rev. Thomas M. Steen, director of the Federation of Churches' Christian Education Department, will speak twice tomorrow at Petworth Methodist Church, Grant Circle and New Hampshire ave. nw. He will address the Youth Fellowship groups at 7 p. m. on "Interpreting the Youth Oslo Conference," and preach at the worship service at 8 p. m. on "Disciplines for a New Day."

Three Choirs to Sing

The choirs of Ninth Street Christian, First Baptist and National City Christian Churches, will sing tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the National City Church, Thomas Circle.

Drew Varney, missionary to South India, at Chevy Chase Church tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. There will also be services there Monday through Wednesday at 8:15 p. m.

Mr. Varney also will be heard Wednesday at 8 p. m. at West Washington Baptist Church, 31st and N sts. nw., where the speakers tomorrow will be Mrs. John Howard, of India, at 11 a. m., and the Rev. Roy Hodges, of North Dakota, at 8:15 p. m.

Speakers at Congress Heights Baptist Church, Esther and Brothers pl. se., will include Mrs. Howard; Chaplain L. E. Nicholson, of South America; Dr. L. R. Many in Congress Active in Religious Work

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Former clergymen and active Bible class teachers are numbered among Congressmen.

Moreover, many Congressmen—without fanfare or personal publicity—attend the weekly breakfast prayer sessions in the Senate Restaurant—on Wednesdays for Senators and on Thursdays for Representatives. The prayer sessions are sponsored by the National Committee for Christian Leadership.

"It's encouraging to see so many Senators and Congressmen active in religious work and putting their Christian principles to work for world peace, foreign relief and other vital issues," says Abraham Vereide, executive secretary of the National Committee for Christian Leadership.

Typical Congressman with a ministerial background is white-haired 80-year-old Representative Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.), House Foreign Affairs Chairman.

Representative Eaton was ordained to the Baptist ministry in 1893, and for 26 years served such pulpits as Madison Avenue Church, New York City; Euclid Avenue Church, Cleveland, Ohio; Bloor Street Church, Toronto, Canada, and others.

His nonpartisan attitude on foreign policy is well-expressed in a statement he gave newsmen last December 24.

At that time, he warned that both parties had better get together on "at least the principles of a world policy—not Republican, not Democratic—but American."

"I would no more formulate a strictly Republican (European recovery) program than undertake to fight a prize fight with one hand tied behind my back," he said then, adding that "I suppose that brands me as a bad partisan."

Representative Eaton was a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations Conference at San Francisco in 1945 and to the UNO General Assemblies in London in 1945 and in New York in 1946.

Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) expresses his Christian convictions on the House floor and in speeches before churches and other religious organizations throughout the country.

He has said repeatedly that Christianity is the only foundation stone that can keep our world from falling apart because it believes in the worth of the human individual and "seizes and builds on the possibilities of backward people."

Dr. Judd, a native Nebraskan, was a Congregational medical missionary in China from 1925 to 1931 and from 1934 to 1938, when he began a two-year speaking tour of America, urging a boycott of Japanese goods and embargo on shipment of war materials to Japan.

Representative Adam Clayton Powell, jr. (D., N. Y.) has been minister of the Abyssinian Baptist Church since 1937, with a membership of over 10,000. Representative Dewey Short (R., Mo.) was formerly a Methodist minister.

Among the Bible class teachers on Capitol Hill are Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala) a Methodist; Senator Clyde R. Hoey (D., N. C.), another Methodist; Representative Brooks Hays (D., Ark.) and Representative J. Percy Priest (D., Tenn.), and others.

Representative Priest is chairman of the House Breakfast prayer group, ushers and frequently teaches Bible classes at First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., where President Truman worships locally. Congressman Priest's wife also teaches a Bible class at First Church. The Sparkman Bible Class of Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw., honors the Alabama Senator and its teacher. Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.), is chairman of the Senate Breakfast Group.

Congressional Secretary Offered Prayer in House

The Rev. Donald Scott McAlpine, secretary to Representative Ellsworth Buck (R., N. Y.), once delivered prayers at the opening of the House session in the absence of Chaplain James Shera Montgomery. That was probably the first time that a congressional secretary ever acted in such a capacity.

McAlpine served for 12 years as pastor of the First Baptist Church at Port Washington, Long Island, and for 3½ years as pastor of the Mariners Harbor Baptist Church on Staten Island. Rejected for the Navy chaplaincy in 1942, he left his church to become personnel manager for a shipyard, and in 1945 assumed his present position. He preaches frequently, is a member of West Washington Baptist Church in Georgetown. He has been invited to speak in his old Port Washington Church tomorrow.

New Protestant Group Draws KC Criticism

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Formation of a Protestant organization for separation of church and state has drawn varied reaction in church circles.

(Spokesmen for the "Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State," had said they were concerned about the presence of a United States Ambassador (Myron Taylor) at the Vatican, but had no purpose of criticizing or opposing "the teaching or internal practices of the Roman Catholic Church or any other."

Sharp criticism of the new organization came from the Knights of Columbus through its Supreme Knight, John E. Swift of New York City.

Sees Patriotism Questioned

In a statement issued through the Chancery Office of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of New York, Swift said the new group had questioned the patriotism of "any citizen, Catholic, Jew or Protestant or nonbeliever who dares to disagree with the organization's biased and inaccurate interpretation of the First Amendment."

"We venture the opinion," the statement declared, "that this new organization will fall of its own weight because, despite its disavowal of anti-Catholicism, it is loaded with an intolerance generally unacceptable to the American people as a whole."

Msgr. John J. Russell, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, said:

"As a Catholic, I don't care whether Myron Taylor goes to the Vatican or not. As an American, I certainly feel we should have some person at what is frequently called 'the listening post of the world.'

"But it would be a distinct loss if our country were to be cut off from a valuable source of information regarding conditions throughout the world."

Dawson Airs Views

Dr. J. M. Dawson, executive secretary of the United States Office of Baptist Public Relations and who was named recording secretary of the organization for church and state separation, Monday aired his views at the Seventh-Day Adventist Theological Seminary in Takoma Park, Md.

"Where there are state churches and a church state, such as in Europe, religion has lost its effectiveness," he said. "Religion must be voluntary. It must be a personality—transforming force as well as a social-transforimng force. The large, almost universally empty churches which I saw during my trip to Europe last summer are mute testimony to the failure of the state church and the church state."

Dr. Dawson was introduced by Dr. Frank Yost, associate secretary of the religious liberty department, general conference of Seventh-day Adventists. Also on the platform was the Rev. O. E. Rebok, seminary president.

Flooded With Messages

Offices of the new church and state separation group in the new Baptist headquarters at 1628 16th st. nw., have been flooded with letters, telegrams and telephone calls about the new organization. Dr. Dawson said that while most of the comment to date has been favorable, the organization is expecting criticism. "But we can disagree agreeably," he said.

Rabbi Morris Pickholz, spiritual leader of the Washington Highlands Jewish Center, 100 Atlantic ave. se., commented:

"We have always felt that the ideal of the separation of church and state has been one of the most important principles of our constitution. That ideal in its fullest implications should be carefully guarded and its perpetuation should be the objective of each and every loyal American.

"We contend that the appointment of Mr. Taylor as Ambassador to the Vatican is in direct violation of that principle. We are therefore fully in accord with this new organization and we commend their action."

[Myron Taylor is an Episcopalian. Editor's note.]

Harrison's second round gave him a three-stroke lead over Ed Furgol, Pontiac, Mich., and Felice Torza, Torrington, Conn., who posted totals of 135. Furgol held fairly close to the pace with a 68. Torza, Connecticut Open champion, who turned professional for the Los Angeles tournament two weeks ago, came in wit ha fine 67.

Doug Ford, New York amateur, racked up his second 68 for a two-day total of 136.

Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., had a 68 and a 36-hole count of 139. Bobby Locke of South Africa, held an unwavering pace to shoot his second round of 70, giving him a total 140 and a deadlock with high money winner of 1947, Jim Demaret, Ojai, Calif.; Jim Turnesa, White Plains, N. Y., and Amateur Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio.

The three players from the Argentine fared well, Martin Pose and Roberty de Vincenzo, each with 142 and Enrique Bertolino, with 143. Bertolino came through with a 70; Pose with a 71 and De Vincenzo with a 72.

Bears Sign Johnny Lujack For $18,000, Paper Says

Star Got $5000 Bonus From Halas Two Weeks Ago, Story Adds

Chicago, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Chicago Tribune, in a copyright story from South Bend, Ind., tonight said it has learned "from unimpeachable sources" that Johnny Lujack of Notre Dame has signed a $18,000 per year contract to play pro football with the Chicago Bears.

The Tribune said Lujack was paid a $5000 bonus for signing in a meeting with George Halas, Bears owner-coach, two weeks ago.

"Today's revelation of Lujack's signing," said the Tribune, "broke about six days in advance of the big contract party Halas had scheduled for the Notre Dame star in Chicago next week."

At South Bend Lujack said he "had not yet decided" whom he would play pro football with next season and flatly denied the copyright story by the Chicago Tribune.

Not Signed, Yet—Lujack

"I plan to sign with a team soon—and the announcement will then be made by that team," he said. "But I have not yet signed. I have been approached by representatives of both the Chicago Rockets and the Chicago Bears."

Meanwhile, at the National Football League meeting in New York, one of the hottest rumors still filtering through the thick walls of the conference rooms is that the All-America Conference, in a bold move to thwart the National League, has appointed an emissary to South Bend in hopes of luring Lujack and Tackles George Connor and Zyggie Czarobski of Notre Dame into the Conference.

The report is that the trio has been offered "a fabulous" amount of money to play with the Chicago Rockets, the weak sister of the loop last season.

Lujack is the draft property of the Rockets, the Cleveland Browns have similar rights to Connor and it is unknown who has rights to Czarobski. It appears that all teams involved are willing to waive their rights in favor of the Rockets.

Lions Hang 5 to 3 Loss On Rockets

The Washington Lions played brilliant hockey to defeat the Philadelphia Rockets 5-3, before 1723 fans last night at Uline Arena to snap their losing streak at seven games.

Holding a 3-2 lead as the final period started, the Lions sewed up the contest on goals by Bud Foley and Kenny Schultz. Charlie Kraiger accounted for the last Rocket goal on a 30-footer with less than a minute to play.

Washington net-tender, Gordie Bell out-dueled Philadelphia's Harvey Jessiman in the nets as he made 41 saves to 34 for Jessiman.

Lions Snap Back

Philadelphia scored first as Phil Hergesheimer lifted a rebound over Goalie Gordon Bell midway in the first period.

The Lions came right back to take the lead on a pair of goals in little more than a minute.

Joe Ciuman tallied on a pass from Pat Wilson, then with Washington a man short, Dan Porteous stole the puck at midice and went in on Philadelphia net-minder Harvey Jessiman unmolested. Poreteus feinted Jessiman out of position and scored easily.

In the second period, the Lions moved into a 3-2 advantage on Ken Schultz's brilliant goal after Jessiman had stopped shots by Pat Foley and Johnny Carr-Harris.

Goal Causes Squabble

Philadelphia came back to score just before the second session closed on a goal by big Eddie Bush.

The Lions disputed the tally after Bush, Bell and the puck ended up together in the net, but the officials allowed it.

Zimmerman Goes To Boston Yanks

New York, Jan. 16 (AP). — Roy Zimmerman, quarterback with the Detroit Lions last season, was traded to the Boston Yanks for Fullback John Grigas today during a brief recess at the annual National Football League meeting.

It was a straight player deal with no cash involved, General Manager Art Sampson of the Yanks said.

Jack Mara, president of the New York Giants, announced the trade of End Frank Liebel to the Chicago Cardinals for the draft rights to Guard Ed Royston of Wake Forest. Royston will be graduated in June.

Liebel, a former Norwich University player, has been with the Giants for five seasons. He was handicapped by injuries throughout most of last season. Coach Steve Owen used the 28-year-old veteran as a pass-catching end and as a defensive halfback.

Under league rules, the Giants will not be able to sign Royston until his class has graduated from college.

George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins, said that Coach Edwards would meet with Harry Gilmer, passing star of ington Sunday and would demand the 1947 Alabama team, at Wash- a "yes or no" answer.

Gilmer was drafted by both the Redskins and by Brooklyn of the been dealing with both clubs.

Although there was no an- All-America Conference and has nouncement, it was rumored that George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears, would stop in South Bend, Ind., Wednesday and confer with Quarterback Lujack of the Irish. Lujack is the draft property of the Bears and also of the Chicago Rockets.

The latter team, reportedly, has sent an emissary to South Bend in hopes of luring Lujack and Tackles George Connor and Zyggie Czarobski into the All-America Conference.

After the brief trading flurry the club owners returned to their meeting room in search of a satisfactory 1948 playing schedule.

The schedule problem continues to occupy nearly all of the football moguls' time. After nearly 36 hours of wrangling, the owners have made some progress, but still haven't been able to come up with a schedule to fill everybody's wants. More than a dozen have been submitted, with that of Marshall receiving the most consideration.

Bell May Draft Schedule

Commissioner Bert Bell said:

"The owners have assured me that if they cannot get together tonight, they will throw the whole thing in my lap and have me draw up another schedule for approval in a couple of weeks.

"Then we can go ahead with the rest of our business which includes the application of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League for admittance, the common draft proposal, the minor league situation, and the reports of the various committees."

Bell said he believed the meetings would last thr ugh Sunday.

Caps Battle Knicks Before 5000 Tonight

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The heat will be on at Uline Arena tonight, but it won't be furnished by the ice palace's steam system.

The Washington Capitols and New York Knickerbockers figure to make things hot enough for even the most thin-blooded of the 5000 customers expected to watch the Basketball Association of America scrap.

It's the first local appearance of the season for the Knicks who come here as leaders of the Eastern Division. This is in sharp contrast to last year when the Caps were the "big stuff" with the rest of the league in hot, but unsuccessful pursuit.

Even-Stephen to Date

The Caps aren't leading the Eastern Division this year for several reasons, most important of which is because they're in the Western branch of the circuit.

They're not only in it, but down deep in it—the cellar—with a 13-11 record, the same pace-setting Knicks own.

Continuing the give-and-take rivalry which saw them split eight games last year, the two clubs have broken even in their two tilts this season.

The Knicks, piloted by Joe Lapchick, former Celtic center and more recently St. John's coach, plastered an 80-65 trimming on the Caps in their first session this year, the only time more than nine points have separated the two clubs in 10 meetings.

Hertzberg Seeks Revenge

All signs point to a genuine grudge game. First off, Washington's Sonny Hertzberg has a score to settle with the Knicks, his old team. He was given the "gate" by the New Yorkers, being denied the privilege of playing in his home parish.

Promptly picked up by Coach Red Auerbach, of the Caps, "Set-Shot Sonny" has been a big factor in Washington's recent reversal of form with his great clutch play.

Also, the Caps haven't forgotten that 80-65 lacing. It came in the second game of the season, before 15,000 Madison Square Garden onlookers who last year regarded Washington as the best team, pro, semi-pro or amateur, they'd ever seen.

Braun Knicks' Threat

Star member of the invaders is Freshman Carl Braun, late of Colgate. The 6' 5" center dumped in 47 points against Providence in December to eclipse the record 42 Joe Fulks made last year.

Bolstering for the stretch drive, the New Yorkers recently added Sid Tannenbaum, two-time All-American at NYU who was purchased from Minneapolis only last week.

Tommy Byrnes, Princeton's Johnny Palmer and Lee Knorek round out the regulars. For the Caps it will be the usual array, Johnny Norlander, Bones McKinney, John Mahnken, Freddie Scolari and Captain Bob Feerick.

In a 7:15 preliminary, the Wardman Park Florists oppose Air Transport Command.

Wanish Paces Terps' Victory

Bill Wanish's 21 points led the University of Maryland to a 68-54 win over South Carolina at College Park last night.

The Terps took the lead for the first time after six minutes of second half and held it until the final gun. Maryland's Al Lann broke the ice with a set shot to make the score 39-38.

A total of four men went out of the game on personals. Bill Brown, Johnny Edwards and Bernie Smith for Maryland; Al Adams for South Carolina.

Maryland now has four for four in the Southern Conference.

Tonight the Terps meet VMI at College Park. The Terps took the Soldiers' measure, 53-46, earlier in the season.

Eastern Wins, Takes Lead; Roosevelt Upsets Wilson

Siegel Paces Riders To 35-31 Triumph; Central Beats Tech

Anacostia Beaten By Ramblers, 47-43; Warner High Scorer

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The Roosevelt Rough Riders pulled the biggest upset of the young interhigh basketball season yesterday afternoon as they tripped Woodrow Wilson's Green Tigers, 35-31, in the second game of a double-header before 1189 spectators at the National Guard Armory.

In the first game, Central's Vikings were the perpetrators of somewhat of a surprise, too, as they dumped McKinley Tech's Trainers, 56-40.

Roosevelt, Central and Wilson now have league records of 1-1. The loss was the second for the Trainers, who haven't won an interhigh contect.

Game, Slow Sloppy

The Roosevelt-Wilson game was a slow and sloppy throughout. The Riders, however, gave hint of what was to follow as they took a 7-6 lead at the first quarter, and increased their margin to 23-15 at intermission. They never trailed afterward. Their edge was 30-23 going into the last quarter.

With three minutes to go, the Tigers were behind, 34-25, when they staged a brief rally.

George Pappafotis, Jack Whitcomb and Don Snider sent successive set shots swishig through the cords, and with 1:15 left, the Tigers trailed by 34-31. Howeyer, Roosevelt managed to freeze the ball the rest of the way.

Warren (Fivey) Siegel led Rider pointmakers with 10, but it was the stellar ball-handling of Little Billy Hibbs that sparked the winners. Whitcomb scored 10 points for the Tigers, who contributed to their own downfall by making only nine of 23 foul shots.

Pantos Paces Attack

Central's victory was paced by slim, speedy Jimmy Pantos who tossed in 22 points.

It was a close game during the first half with Central leading 16-12 at the first quarter, and 24-20 at intermission.

At the beginning of the third period, Tech scored six straight points to take the lead, 26-24. But that was Tech's dying rally. For the Vikings got hot and scored 18 of the next 24 points.

During that streak, Pantos chalked up seven. Another Central standout was Chunky Bobby Johnson who tallied 13 points. High scorers for Tech were Paul Pacini and Bob Curtis with 10 each.

Eastern's scrappy Ramblers took over first place in the Interhigh Basketball League last night with a 47-43 victory over Anacostia's Indians in the first game of a double-header at the National Guard Armory.

One of the largest crowds ever to see an interhigh game here—more than 3500—watched the Ramblers gain a 15-7 edge in the first quarter and hang on to the lead the rest of the way.

The win was the second against no losses for Eastern. The loss was the first in two loop games for the Indians.

That first period margin of the Ramblers spelled victory. After the first stanza, Anacostia played Eastern on better than even terms, outscoring the Ramblers, 36-32. Eastern led, 29-20, at half time and 39-33 going into the last quarter.

The Indians pulled up to within four points at 45-41 with four minutes to go, but couldn't do any better.

Wally Warner of Anacostia took scoring honors as he chalked up 19 points despite the fact that Eastern, at times, had three men covering him. Johnny Brown was high for Eastern with 13.

Cubs Buy Jeffcoat

Chicago, Jan. 16 (AP). — The purchase of Outfielder Harold Jeffcoat, 23, from Nashville of the Southern Association was announced today by the Chicago Cubs. The price tag was not disclosed.

Jeffcoat batted .346 in 153 games for Nashville last season and his total of 218 hits topped the Southern Association.

Louis 'Flop' of '47

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Joe Louis' dismal winning effort against Jersey Joe Walcott was the biggest disappointment of 1947 to the sports editors of the Nation who contributed answers to the annual Associated Press year-end poll.

Choice of Louis was not unanimous. In fact, it probably would have been a tossup between the Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Cardinals for "most disappointing performance" if the heavyweight fight had not resulted in such a commotion.

12 Teams in Majors?

Milwaukee, Jan. 16 (AP).—Addition of eight cities to make possible two 12-team major baseball leagues was envisioned today by Lou Perini, president of the National League Boston Braves.

"There are at least eight cities, including Milwaukee, which could support a major league baseball team," Perini said.

"If I had my way we would add also San Francisco, Los Angeles, Oakland and Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League, Baltimore and Montreal of the International League and possibly Houston of the Texas League. That would give us two 12-team leagues, for which schedules could be drawn easily.

DEAR FOLKS: At Hialeah.

Former Jockey Ivan Parke, now a trainer for the F. W. Hooper Stable, remembers the first day of racing ever staged over the Hialeah track. On January 15, 1925, Parke won the first race on a horse named Braedalbane. Sunshine Park (Tampa) is having a tough time getting customers and betting. The handle is very light and will have to pick up or somebody is going to lose a couple of shirts. Rough weather has been one of the causes. Last year, the first for the track, also was marked by a decided lack of cooperation from the weather man. I hope business picks up because a lot of racetrackers are depending on the session to carry them over the winter. So cold in Florida that those who bet on Armed to win haven't been able to get hot under the collar. Circle M Farm's Relic goes after the main portion of the $10,000 Hibiscus Stakes on the first Hialeah weekend program of the year. This is the first Hialeah clash for 3-year-olds of the season. Is it true that the trotting track at Oxon Hill, Md., is being built close to a creek that might overflow and knock out the sport at any time? Bryan Field will air the Saturday feature races from Hialeah over WOL. We can expect the usual excellent job. BILL.

Garden State Bucks 'Graw And Pimlico

Baltimore, Jan. 16 (AP).—Milton A. Reckord, president of Havre de Grace, said tonight he considered it "very poor policy" for New Jersey horse racing tracks to select dates which concide with the Maryland schedules.

The New Jersey Racing Commission today allocated 42 days of racing to Garden State, which will compete with the meetings of Havre de Grace and Pimlico.

Garden State will operate April 15 through May 31. Havre de Grace wil lhave a split meeting, April 14-May 1 and May 17-21. Pimlico's spring meeting will run from May 3 through May 15.

Reckord declared it "very poor policy for them (New Jersey) to select dates that are in competition. Not only both tracks are interested, but both States are interested in the revenue received through taxes."

Reduce Crowds

He admitted the competition would "make a very material difference since competition of that kind will reduce the crowds."

Both Reckford and a Pimlico spokesman agreed the competition would have other adverse effects besides possible reduced attendance. They pointed out several officials served the tracks in both States and there also would be a scramble for entries.

Among the officials involved is Charles McLennan. He is Pimlico racing secretary and general manager of Havre de Grace as well as racing secretary for Garden State.

Reckford said he "had hoped" New Jersey would select dates avoiding competition with Maryland. "My first reaction is that we will sit down with them and talk it over, and that is what we probably will do."

Pimlico Least Hurt

The Pimlico spokesman felt the effect on the Baltimore track would be slight. He noted that of the two saturdays on Pimlico's meeting one is the Preakness—"and I defy anyone to hurt us on that."

He also pointed out Pimlico is not too dependent on out-of-State attendance as is Havre de Grace, which is located near the Pennsylvania and Delaware Borders.

Charles Sheehan, New Jersey secretary, in announcing dates for Garden State, Monmouth Park (June 21 to August 7) and Atlantic Cit (August 9 to September 25) tracks noted they allowed a 21-day lapse between May 31 and June 21. He said this was arranged purposely to avoid competition with Delaware Park.

Marine Post Kids Have Yet to Lose

ONE OF THE most cosmopolitan schoolboy basketball teams in the Nation belongs to the Quantico (Va.) Marine Post High School.

Its much-traveled players are the sons of Marine Corps and civil service personnel stationed at Quantico. Having moved from station to station with their dads, they have seen and participated in practically every style of basketball played in the United States.

Their school, consisting of 79 students, 50 of them girls, is under jurisdiction of the Prince William County Public School Board. With the State's other smaller schools, Quantico High competes athletically in the Virginia Class C conference.

AMONG THE MEMBERS of the team who have come a long way to play for Quantico High are the Pearson brothers, Jim of San Bernardino, Calif., and Gregory of Coronado, Calif.; Bob Humphrey of Charleston, S. C., and Charlie Keller of Lyons, Ohio. Keller, by the way, played basketball last year in Honolulu, where his dad was stationed.

Despite the fact that the oldest boy on the team is barely 17 and the youngest, Gregory Pearson, is only 13, Quantico has won five straight games without a loss against older clubs.

SO FAR, THE little Marines have beaten C. T. Smith of Ladysmith, 55-26; Fairfax, 51-36; Alumni, 47-36; Stafford, Va., 36-17, and Occoquan, Va., 50-22.

Star of the team is 5-foot-9-inch Bill Austin, who was born on the Quantico base 16 years ago. He has averaged 15 points per game. Playmaker is another Quantico boy, Francis Savash. The other regulars are Keller, Jean Fletcher and Frank Watson.

Coach is Lou Biskup, a civil employe, who teaches sciences and physical education at Quantico High. A former basketball star at Springfield (Mass.) College, Biskup has tried to teach his boys the New England style of shooting and playmaking.

"But," he says, "sometimes that's difficult. Remember, these boys have played out in the Far West and Middle West. I'll instruct one of my boys that the surest shot is a two hander. And then, a Western lad, like one of the Pearson boys, will get in there and sink three straight Western-style one handers.

"Sometimes I don't know what to believe myself."

4 Bouts Added To Ring Card

Four supporting matches have been added to Monday's night's boxing show featuring Jimmy Cooper and Frankie Pucci, over the eight-round route.

An eight rounder will find Kid Alexander, who has seven victories and one draw since his comback campaign, boxing Red Gaddis, local featherweight.

Bill Lanhma, unbeaten local heavyweight, will oppose Leon Ford, of Baltimore, in a five-rounder; Frank Ford, also undefeated, will take on Billy Unk, in a four, while Kid Ferris will box Speedy Robinson in another four.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

Many a man who proposes without avail might have better luck if he wore one.

Montgomery Parents Lose Round 1 in Tuition Fight

Commissioners Refuse Hearing on Interpretation of Non-Resident Law

Montgomery County parents whose children are attending District schools for the first time this semester lost the first round yesterday in their fight to avoid tuition fees.

The Commissioners turned down the request of 19 parents for a hearing on an interpretation by the Corporation Counsel of a law ending tuition exemption for certain non-resident students.

Twelve other families living in the Kensington-Garrett Park area took their protest yesterday to Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning.

File Affidavits

They filed affidavits contending their children are entitled to free tuition in the District public schools.

The controversy centers around interpretation of the word "enroll" in the 1948 District Appropriations Act.

The act ended free instruction for nonresident students with the exception of those already "enrolled in the schools of the District of Columbia on the date of the approval of this act."

Taxes Were Deducible

Nonresident students previously were exempt from tuition if their parents were employed in the District or were members of the armed forces. Taxes paid in the District by parents of nonresident students could be subtracted from the tuition bill.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West last October interpreted "enroll" to mean students actually in attendance before or on July 25, date the act was approved.

Parents contend their children are eligible for free tuition because they signed up before the July deadline to attend classes in September.

Subcommittee Due to Pass Hughes' Book

Continued use of the textbook "Building Citizenship" in the District schools is expected to be approved by a House District subcommittee.

Subcommittee members said they would approve the book for public school use if questioned passages are corrected. Proposals for such corrections were presented to the committee in a hearing at the Capitol by the author, Dr. Ray O. Hughes, of Pittsburgh.

After hearing Hughes, Subcommittee Chairman A. L. Miller (R., Neb.) and Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.) said they would vote against banning the book. Use of the book had been protested by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Washington chapter.

Representative John J. Allen, jr. (R., Calif.) said he felt Hughes' text "is a good book—I wouldn't be afraid to leave it around my house and let the kids take a crack at it."

Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) said he would not favor removing Hughes' book from the school "if the objectionable matter is removed."

Davis questioned Hughes about citing in his book as a reference work the book "Grandsons" by Louis Adamic, and cited passages containing profanity. Hughes said he was willing to delete the reference to Adamic's book.

The committee also heard School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning testify that books by Harold Rugg and Louise Krueger would be recommended to the school board for removal from the list of books approved for purchase.

Both Miller and Davis emphasized that the books should be removed because Louise Krueger was a director of the Walt Whitman school cited by the Justice Department's list of subversive organizations.

John E. Kelchner will speak on "Christ or Chaos" tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the Kensington Fire Hall. It will be the second in a series of meetings sponsored by the Crusaders of Faith, a Seventh-Day Adventist laymen's missionary organization.

Police Drive Raises $15,000 Toward Goal of Boys Club

The Washington Post

"SIGN HERE, PLEASE"—Kenneth LeRoy, 12, of 1335 Ridge pl. se., representing 13,000 Police Boys' Club members, gets Capt. Robert Pearce's autograph at yesterday's drive-launching luncheon in the Mayflower Hotel

More than $15,000 toward the $125,000 goal of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club has been raised by police campaigners since the drive began Monday, Maj. Robert J. Barrett reported yesterday.

Major Barrett, who heads a special 1200-member soliciting committee, spoke at a "kickoff" luncheon for the organization's annual drive in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower Hotel.

More than 200 persons, headed by Attorney General Tom C. Clark and the District Commissioners, heard work of the Police Boys Club praised by various speakers.

The Attorney General, in the keynote speech, said the six District clubs were an "example for the country because they are so efficiently run." He said they were one of the greatest factors in the city in the fight against juvenile delinquency.

Clark praised Ernest W. Brown, former head of Washington police, and the organization's leaders, and urged District residents to contribute to the drive "as a good investment in Washington's future."

Other speakers included Commissioners John Russell Young and Guy Mason, and John A. Remon, president of the organization. Present were representatives of the Federal and District governments, captains and officers of the Metropolitan Police Department and members of the clubs' women's auxiliary.

Marine Breaks Leg to Bring Arrest of Pop-Bottle Bandit

Two District holdups, an armed robbery in an Arlington (Va.) home, and three robberies in the District were reported to police yesterday.

An attempt at a grocery store holdup failed last evening when two men were beaten off by the manager.

In one of the District holdups, Egan Davis, 23, 627 14th st. ne., a taxi driver, told police he had been forced to drive a bandit around the city for three hours in search of victims, after he had proved to the man that his wallet was empty.

Police held his fare, who gave his name as Isaiah Bradley, 23, of the 400 block, Eastern ave, ne., after Davis said a Marine who came aboard during the ride lost $5 to the holdup man, who was using a "cold, hard object" from the back seat as a weapon. The serviceman, later identified as Staff Sergt. Hoyt Ray Evans, spotted two policemen at 9th st. and New York ave. nw. and managed to fall out of the cab there, attracting their attention. The cab continued to roll, crashing into the front of the Hippodrome Theater. Evans, who suffered a fractured leg was sent to Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Pop Bottle His Weapon

Pvt. James Lynch, who was on duty at the Empire Building with Pvt. H. L. Harps, raced after the cab and caught Bailey. The object used by Bailey in affecting the holdup turned out to be an empty soft drink bottle.

Alan J. Warner of 503 Kennedy st. nw., owner of the Comet Realty Co., at 939 New York ave. nw., told police he had been robbed of $50 or $60 by a slender youth about 28 years old who forced him and a friend, Morris Platshon of 1910 21st st. ne. into the back of his office while the bandit went out to hail a taxi.

Platshon lost about $2, he said. Close to $1000 which had been in a cash drawer had been sent to the bank about 20 minutes before the holdup man, wielding a revolver, came in, Werner said.

Veteran Routs Robbers

An attempted robbery of a grocery store was foiled at about 4 p. m. yesterday when Morris Kottler, 25, of 415 Peabody st. ne., a Purple Heart Coast Guard veteran, struck back at one of two men who tried to get the day's proceeds out of the cash register.

Kottler, manager of the New Riggs Market at 1462 P st. nw., was cut on the left forearm by one of the assailants and struck on the back with a heavy object by the other, he told police. Kottler, who was wounded while serving on the U.S.S. Spencer on the Murmansk run, said the second bandit, who had what he thought was a blackjack, looked about 6 feet 3 and probably weighed 200 pounds. When he tried to grab money from the cash register, the groceryman rammed the drawer shut with his foot, he told police.

The men, who were Negroes, fled on foot. Kottler described the man who cut him as about 5 feet 7.

Arlington police yesterday were looking for three gunmen who beat up an Arlington barber and tied him and his wife while they searched the couple's home, reportedly asking where "that

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Cofer Fairfax, had gone to bed Thursday night in their home at 817 N. Lincoln st., when the three men, all armed and masked, knocked on the door and forced their way in. After they had searched the house, they threatened to burn Fairfax's feet, he said. Fairfax and his wife were treated for cuts and for shock.

C. Melvin Sharpe, retired Potomac Electric Power Co. official and member of the District Board of Education, was elected vice chairman to succeed Sundlun.

Cold 'Seriously' Drains Fuel Oil Supply; Woman Found Dead With Clothes Ablaze

Four Fires Keep Apparatus Busy in Montgomery; Victim Fell Over Gas Flame

Her clothing ablaze, a 52-year-old woman was found dead in her apartment here yesterday.

In nearby Maryland, a $30,000 fire in the uncompleted Rock Creek Gardens apartment project, a residence, a laundry and one office blaze kept Montgomery County fire departments busy.

The dead woman, apparently the victim of a heart attack, is Mrs. Sally Williams, of 1736 Columbia rd. nw., employe of Best & Co., 4433 Connecticut ave. nw.

Made No Outcry

Police homicide Detective Sergt. Bernard Crooke said the fact that Mrs. Williams made no outcry as she fell over the lighted burner of a gas stove indicated she may have been fatally stricken before her clothing caught fire.

An autopsy is to be performed.

Part of the roof of one section collapsed and four units were gutted.

Carries Children to Safety

In another fire a 29-year-old mother carried her two children to safety early yesterday while her former Marine husband attempted to extinguish the fire which destroyed their four-room bungalow on Overton la., off the Colesville rd.

Mrs. Bose Wittington, her husband and two children, Robert, 20 months, and Richard, 6 months, fled from their home in their bare feet when flames raced through the house. Whittington was unable to use the telephone because the fire had burned through the line. He blamed the fire on kerosene leaking from a heater.

A second fire virtually destroyed the three-room business office of Gorin Brothers, contractors, at 1201 Holton la., Takoma Park, causing damage estimated at $5000.

Converted Laundry Ruined

A laundry converted from three trailers in the 1600 block of Graham rd., near University la., in Takoma Park was heavily damaged by fire of undetermined origin.

Mrs. Williams' body was found by a roommate, Mrs. Beulah Chambers, who called the janitor of the building.

Mrs. Chambers said her roommate had returned from work at mid-morning, feeling ill and had gone to the kitchen to heat water for a hot water bottle. She said she heard no outcry, but heard the sound of a falling body and then investigated.

Mrs. Williams had been employed at Best & Co. about six months. She leaves a sister, Mrs. R. T. Jenigan, of Winston-Salem, N. C., and a nephew, Pvt. Edward A. Young, of Bolling Field.

She had been receiving treatment for a heart ailment, Mrs. Chambers said.

The Alexandria March of Dimes drive will be formally opened at 2 p. m. today by City Manager Nicholas Colesanto in a program at the donation booth at 620 King st.

Expert Begins Screening 1st X-Rays Taken

Many 'Suspects' Due To Be Called Later For Large-Size Photos

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Expert interpreting of the first X-rays taken of an expected 600,000 chest examinations here began yesterday.

The project got under way at Weightman School, 23d and M sts. nw., even as workmen hastened interior alterations there to prepare for influx of "suspects" who will be summoned for X-raying on large-size plates.

The interpretation, or screening, was begun by Dr. Edward Elisberg, United States Public Health Service medical officer, a veteran of every mass X-ray survey backed by USPHS in cities having more than 100,000 population. He will shortly be joined by three other physicians to handle the huge volume of work.

From past experience in other cities, Dr. Elisberg explained, he can expect to find signs of chest disorder in two out of every 100 persons X-rayed. These are summoned, by sealed letter, to appointments at the Weightman School for the larger X-rays.

By yesterday, the mass survey, which began here Monday, was averaging close to 8000 X-rays daily, or about 3000 over the number required daily to enable sponsors to reach their 600,000 goal by the campaign's end, on June 15.

Aim of the prodigious undertaking is to bring under control and eventually stamp out tuberculosis in the Nation's Capital. The survey, first of its kind in a city of more than 500,000 population, will serve as a pattern for some 92 other cities throughout United States.

By nightfall yesterday, Dr. Elisberg said he had uncovered "some" chest disorders from the first batch of X-ray films he examined. But it may be several weeks yet, he said, before the "suspects" will be called in for re-examination.

He estimated that three out of every five called in for second X-rays will eventually be assured they have no symptoms of active tuberculosis.

The X-raying service, without cost or embarrassment to the public, is sponsored jointly by USPHS, the District Health Department, and the D. C. Tuberculosis Association. A similar survey is under way in Montgomery County, Md., while Arlington County, Va., will open its own compaign on February 17.

Ruhland Gags Division Chiefs At Gallinger

Order to 'Quit Talking Out of Turn' Criticized by Mason

Health Officer George C. Ruhland yesterday ordered Gallinger Hospital department chiefs to "quit talking out of turn" and to make complaints through "channels" instead of public staments.

His action came after Dr. Sol Katz, chief medical officer of the tuberculosis department, charged Thursday that recovery of TB patients is retarded by improper food.

Dr. Alvin Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, said he had received the order and passed it on to the department heads. "That's been our policy right along," he declared, "because what comes out does not represent the real situation."

Commissioner Guy Mason, informed of the order, said Dr. Ruhland had "no right to do that." "I've never imposed any censorship on anybody," he asserted.

Mason also revealed he had asked for a full investigation of the hospital's food situation, including food served to staff members as well as patients.

Dr. Katz declared that unless top officials stop giving out "inaccurate" statements regarding the food situation, he would defend his stand" in no uncertain fashion"—"gag rule or no gag rule."

He branded as a "complete untruth" Dr. Sweeney's statement that TB patients could obtain as many additional helpings of food as they wanted.

At a regular staff meeting yesterday, repartment heads were ordered to form a committee to check the food situation in each department and prepare a report. Dr. Sweeney said. The report will be sent to the health department in about a week, for transmittal to the Commissioners, he added.

Weakened Pier Held Cause Of Empire Building Collapse

The Empire Building collapse investigating board has agreed that the failure of a strategic pier carved from an existing wall caused the disaster, The Washington Post learned last night.

Members of the board, who will visit the collapse scene at 9th st. and New York ave. nw. this morning, are now concentrating on the assessment of guilt for the accident which took the lives of four persons and injured 12, it was reported.

Yesterday, members of a special nine-man committee appointed seven months ago by the District Commissioners to streamline the procedure of granting various permits, held another session in the Municipal Center.

The committee has agreed in general on a recommendation for the establishment of a centralized permit bureau and a speedup in the granting of permits. Committee members are now studying flow charts indicating how permit applications are checked to determine what steps could be eliminated.

The Washington Post revealed last month that many buildings here have been substantially altered without the safeguards of District permits or inspections and that one of the reasons for the bypassing is the complicated and time-consuming operations required to obtain permits.

Officials Advocate 15% Reduction in Use; Light Snowfall Forecast for Today

This disclosure came yesterday afternoon as a warming sun sent the mercury to above freezing for the first time in 36 hours.

J. Thomas Kennedy, District director of weights and measures, conferred with representatives of five major oil companies and fuel supply observers; then urged an immediate reduction of at least 15 per cent in use of heating oil.

The request came as a new mass of cold air moved in from the West, threatening to drop temperatures to 24 degrees early today.

Cloudy, Windy Today

"If the reduction isn't made, they'll be hard hit for fuel oil," Kennedy warned after conferring with the Industry Advisory Committee, the Fuel Oil Coordinating Committee and representatives of the Board of Trade.

Light snow is forecast for early today, becoming heavier in the afternoon or evening and clearing late tonight. Temperatures will be slightly below freezing, the Weather Bureau predicted.

More optimistic reports on heating came from coal dealers and from the Washington Gas Light Co.

P. A. Deck, chairman of the coal division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, said dealers were getting shipments regularly. "There may be short supply on some grades, but no crisis appears in the general picture," Deck said.

Gas Production at Normal

The Gas company, crippled temporarily earlier this week by a gas main break north of Culpeper, Va., was back on full production basis.

Over the eastern part of the Nation, icy gales pushed biting weather toward the Atlantic, bringing hardships to normally moderate Southeastern States. A sharp increase in fires due to overheated stoves was noted in the South; at least 12 persons have been burned to death and three frozen since the frigid weather moved in.

At Macon, Ga., a hospital appealed to families of patients to bring in extra blankets. An estimated 100,000 workers were idle in Georgia, where Atlanta registered 12 degrees.

As the widening pool of cold air spread south and east, it kicked up a snowstorm over Tennessee, left five inches of snow in Memphis and knocked temperatures in northern Minnesota down to 25 below zero at Duluth. A 45-mile wind whipped a 16-inch snowfall into miniature blizzards; blinding and freezing many game birds.

Reflecting Pool Still Closed

North-Central and New England States had subzero marks.

In Washington, skaters were still kept off the Reflecting Pool's 2-inch ice, while authorities waited until it strengthened by another inch.

Skaters were making good use of the ponds at Kenilworth Gardens on Douglas st. ne., near Kenilworth ave.

The mercury here began sliding down the glass after 12:40 p. m. Tuesday with a reading of 38 degrees. It was 34 at 2:28 a. m. Wednesday; 13 at 7:10 a. m. Thursday, but rallied to 25 degrees at 2:44 p. m. the same day.

Yesterday's low was 21 degrees at 12:08 a. m.; the high, 43 degrees at 2:52 p. m.

Union Shop Vote At Vepco Asked In NLRB Petition

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16 (AP).—Rank and file employes of the Virginia Electric & Power Co. would vote in a referendum on whether they want a union shop agreement with the company, under terms of a petition filed with the National Labor Relations Board.

The petition was filed yesterday by J. C. McIntosh of Washington, international representative of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL).

Company spokesmen had no comment on the petition.

A union spokesman said the petition will bring before the NLRB for the first time the question of union security as it applies to workers of a company operating in Virginia and North Carolina, where closed shop and union shop contracts are prohibited by State law; it also operates in West Virginia, where no such State law exists.

The Taft-Hartley law attempts to guarantee the validity of the "right-to-work" laws of Virginia and North Carolina, and some observers here saw the IBEW's petition as a test of the constitutionality of the State statues.

Lane Discusses Radial Roads With Truman

Ways and means of improving Maryland highways leading out of the District of Columbia were discussed yesterday by President Truman, top Federal Works Administration officials and Gov. Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland.

Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming and Thomas H. MacDonald, Commissioner of the Public Roads Administration, discussed at the White House what MacDonald termed a "long-term plan for the metropolitan area of Washington."

The subject is tied up with a proposed modification of the Federal Highway Aid Act of 1944, which allows the appropriation of Federal funds for urban areas as well as for intercity and secondary highways. The act would have to be revised to allow the use of such funds in urban areas which extend across State lines, the officials explained.

Governor Lane had proposed to President Truman and Major General Fleming on January 5 that the Federal Government grant 50 million dollars for Maryland highways leading out of the District, plus three million dollars a year to be matched by State funds.

Yesterday, he told reporters that Maryland has about 200 million dollars available for roads and added, "We are willing to do our part in the Federal area, but we want the Federal Government to do its part, too."

MacDonald said the proposed amendment to the aid act would probably extend the Washington metropolitan area, for road purposes, to a radius of between 5 and 15 miles from the center. It would give authority to Maryland and Virginia, the District and the FWA, to formulate together a highway program for the greater Washington area, he explained.

Old Caucasian Cache Found

Moscow (U.P.).—Soviet archaeologists have uncovered a treasure cache buried by Caucasian tribesmen 2600 years ago.

In it they found new evidence to support the theory that the mid-Caucasian mountains and valleys were one of the cradles of civilization.

Vases, bronze axes, open-work azure dagger sheaths, drinking cups and small pieces of colored metal work were found in the hillside cache. They were in perfect condition and expertly tooled, according to the experts.

The archaeologists were directed to the treasure by a farmer who had been helping a road gang.

He discovered a cave and, upon entering it, stumbled across a flagstone. The treasure was beneath it.

The expedition also discovered the oldest central Caucasus burial ground yet unearthed. It was believed to date back to some time in the second thousand years before Christ.

Baltimore Claim To Hague Estate Voided; Kin Win

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 16 (AP).—A $60,000 estate was awarded today to the nephews and nieces of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hague of Baltimore by the Court of Appeals.

The decision voided the claim of Baltimore City to the money.

The Hagues, an elderly couple, died of gas poisoning in their apartment March 6, 1946. Each had made a will leaving all to the other.

The city, under the uniform simultaneous death act providing for the transfer of certain estates to public funds, laid claim to the estate.

The high court ruled the city authorities had not construed the law properly. It disposed of arguments over which of the couple died first by ruling "whether either or neither survived, we think the nephews and nieces are entitled to the estates of both."

He'd found the steer in his own root cellar. It had fallen through the roof a few days before and Patten found it still contentedly munching potatoes and carrots on the cellar floor.

Mr. Collins, a native of Washington, D. C., started with Bethlehem in 1917 and had been in charge of the shipbuilding division for the past two years. During World War II he was general manager of the company's Quincy yard at Quincy, Mass., and also was in charge of the yard at Hingham, Mass. Recently he received the President's certificate of merit for "outstanding contribution to the Navy's shipbuilding and ship repair program during World War II."

Simple Rites To Be Held for Daniels Today

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Josephus Daniels lay in death in his beloved Wakestone tonight as a Nation he had served as Ambassador and presidential Cabinet member paid him tribute.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widows of former Presidents of the United States, said they planned to attend the funeral services at 2:30 p. m., tomorrow. Others in high office also were expected.

Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan and Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall flew here today to pay their respects, but returned to Washington because of the press of official business.

Joseph C. Grew, former Undersecretary of State, was designated by Secretary of State Marshall to represent him at the funeral.

Hundreds of messages of condolence were directed to his four sons, who stood by his bed during his 12-day illness that ended yesterday. He suffered from pneumonia and complications of old age. He was 85 years old.

The last rites will be simple. They will be held at Edenton Street Methodist Church, of which he had been an active member for many years, and will be conducted by Bishop W. W. Peele of Richmond, Va., a former pastor of that church. He will be buried in Oakwood Cemetery beside his wife, who died in 1943. Pallbearers will be eight Negro men who were employed at the News and Observer, of which he was editor-publisher, or at the home.

Daniels was Secretary of the Navy under President Wilson and in World War I directed the transfer of two million fighting men to Europe without the loss of a single life in the submarine-infested Atlantic. He was President Roosevelt's Ambassador to Mexico.

The flags over Capitol Hill flew at half-staff today at the direction of Gov. R. Gregg Cherry. Flags on all American Navy ships and at shore stations were ordered flown at half mast until sunset tomorrow by Secretary of the Navy Sulivan when he notified Navy installations of the death of Daniels.

"His untiring interest in the Navy since relinquishing office has contributed greatly to the growth and welfare of the Navy," Secretary Sullivan said.

Governor Tuck, in expressing regret at the former delegate's unexpected death, said he had served ably in the General Assembly and "was my warm personal friend."

"I am deeply grieved by the news of his death," the governor added. "He will be sorely missed throughout Virginia."

A native of Roanoke County, he was educated at Emory and Henry College. In addition to having extensive farming interests in Washington County, he was prominent in business affairs here.

Charges Marshall Plan Opponents Follow Red Line

By Genevieve Reynolds

Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) yesterday charged that opponents of the Marshall Plan are in complete agreement with the Communist Party line.

The Senator made his accusation in a prepared speech delivered before some 800 delegates to the twenty-second annual National Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense. "Those who oppose the Marshall Plan, I think," he said, "should suffer some slight embarrassment in finding themselves in agreement with the Communist Party line."

Pointing out that the Communists not only in Russia but throughout the world are working for the defeat of European recovery, he asserted, "this should convince all that we are on the right track."

Contending that the Administration is relying too much on "cash register psychology" in meeting its problems abroad, Representative Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.) told conclave delegates, "American money and food will help, but American methods and facts are of even more importance if we are to round out and shape up a comprehensive program to insure the peace and prevent aggressive communism from plunging first Europe and then America into another blood bath of war."

Six-Point Program

Then the South Dakotan proposed a six-point program as "essential stepping stones up the path of peace." The program is as follows:

1. Extension of economic aid within the limits of our ability on terms securing the best possible strategic returns for America.

2. Concurrent action in the United Nations to revamp its policies so Communist Russia no longer can block efforts at preserving peace through collective security.

3. Adoption of a vigorous "Voice of America" program by which this country may tell the truth about itself to foreign nations.

4. Abandonment of the Morgenthau Plan for reducing Germany to virtually an agricultural state and its replacement by a program utilizing the resources of Germany and Austria to strengthen the economic tone of non-Communist Europe.

5. Development and application of "strictly realistic and reciprocal" relations between the United States and Russia, in which there shall be no further appeasement or one-way privileges extended to the Soviet Union.

6. Maintenance of a strong, modern and alert defense establishment to support American foreign policy."

Speaking at the morning session Representative Frances P. Bolton urged a strong national defense program—strong air force, Navy and Army and scientific department in order to be able to speak firmly enough in a language that will be clearly understood.

"Such a front is necessary," she explained, "but where strength is needed most is in our homes, our schools, our communities. These are the foundation stones of the freedom about which we talk so much."

Representative Katharine St. George (R., N. Y.) told the afternoon session that National defense now not only means armies, navies and air force, atomic weapons but germ warfare. "It also means the planning of complete mobilization of the entire population because the next war will be against the entire civilian population of the world," she declared.

In a round table discussion of the Marshall Plan during the morning session participants included Representative Lawrence H. Smith of Wisconsin, Representative Mike Mansfield of Montana, Representative Walter Judd of Minnesota, and Representative Mundt, Representative Pete Jarman of Alabama.

Representative Judd said that he is in favor of the European Recovery Plan provided certain conditions are met . . . That nations of Europe make a collective attack on their problem and that ERP must be administered in a more hardboiled manner than past relief measures and the U. N. must be modified so it can work for world peace.

Representative Jarman said that he was for the Marshall Plan despite the possibility that it might fail. "I believe it is better to try it than to submit to the alternative."

Representative Mansfield said that he was an ardent and outright advocate of the ERP and that national defense would cost more than the Marshall Plan.

Style Show Pits Quiet Lines vs. Extreme Modes

By Peggy Preston

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 16.—The battle of the extreme vs. the conservative silhouette was dramatized in two of today's fashion shows.

If you're looking for something new and completely different then you'll like Anna Miller's gowns and her revolutionary "morning glory" silhouette. On the other hand, if it is wise, cool precision in line that takes your fancy, then Herbert Sondheim is your man.

Miss Miller introduced the first completely new note we've seen this week with her slim, stragetically flared suits and dresses. General trend is for the small top, full skirt. This designer took courage in hand and created a line that retains only the little bodice. But there the trend is broken with slim, smooth hips, narrow to the knees where the skirt bursts out in graceful drifts. Just above the flare she sets a great puff of ruching or pleating and repeating it again on the hems of the skirts.

It's an effective silhouette and will be effective on tall, graceful women. Others will find themselves more at ease in Miss Miller's more traditional designs which are equally lovely, but less dramatic.

Moving in an opposite direction is Mr. Sondheim who showed us a collection that was distinctive because of it's quiet lines and fashion-wise adaptability. His are clotes that will "do something" for women with average or poor figures.

He has not, for instance, gone overboard on any single fashion item. As he himself, admits frankly, "I've followed a middle of FULL SKIRTS are there but they are adjusted to the figure of the wearer rather than belling out from a petticoat. Hiplines are rounded but unexaggerated and the waist is not restricted. In his costumes the waist appears small because a jacket is snugly belted or corseletted with frog fastenings; because a slim middy top is nipped-in; or because bodice drapery is crossed above a soft, wrapped sash.

Other designers are using the same tricks of cutting and line to achieve the full, rounded silhouette with benefit of padding. But Mr. Sondheim has done it far better than most.

Play clothes are the "darlings" of this winter's collections.

It would seem as though designers like to make them as much as we like to wear them—and look at them. They've put all manner of new fabrics and designs into bathing suits; sewed dainty skirts on tennis dresses; created becah coats that can double for street wear and four-way ensembles that will see you right from the office, into the ocean and onto the dance floor.

ANNA MILLER gives a new version of the new silhouette and names it "Morning Glory." The jacket springs out from a nipped-in waistline and gets its lower trumpet-like shape with taffeta ruching, finely pleated. Especially effective for tall, graceful women.

TYPICAL of Herbert Sondheim's more conservative and adaptable styles is this chambray from his spring suit collection. The hipline of the long, tailored jacket is rounded by oversized pockets and the straight skirt has a little half pleat in the back for walking ease.

Symphony Society Entertains Before Campaign for Funds

Preceding the opening of their drive, the National Symphony Sustaining Fund committee gave a cocktail party for the press yesterday. Guests gathered in the French Room of the Raleigh Hotel and were greeted by Col. Curt C. Schiffeler.

Edward B. Burling, jr., chairman of the drive, spoke briefly on the aims of the campaign, which will open on February 3 with a luncheon at the Mayflower and run through February 20.

The speaker announced that $165,000 is the goal. "We will have to maintain our quota this year," he said, adding that it was no wolf call, and that if this sum was not raised, money would be refunded and the orchestra would close down.

Among the guests were Mrs. Theodore Dominick, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe and Charles C. Rayner.

New Look Endangers Lives

London, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—The "new look" is endangering the life and limb of highway motorists and pedestrians, the East Barnet Road safety committee declared today.

The committee said it had decided reluctantly that no useful purpose could be served by complaining to dress designers, but it announced its findings against the "little above the curb" hemlines anyway.

It charged that the long skirts distract attention of motorists and reduce the speed of women crossing the street.

But, worst of all, it declared, long skirts are likely to catch in the back wheels of bicycles, causing no end of embarrassment and discomfort to modish ladies.

Mrs. Flanders Honors Sister With Party at Sulgrave Club

By Marie McNair

NOT to prove her patriotism but to exemplify it Mrs. Ralph Flanders, wife of the Senator from Vermont, can boast that not an ounce of wheat flour was used for her party yesterday at the Sulgrave Club.

It was a small gathering with guests asked to meet her sister, Mrs. William H. Beardsley of Springfield, Vt., here for a mid-winter visit. The two ladies stood in the wide hallway of the club, Mrs. Flanders in a fitted black velfet gown with jared skirt and a yoke collar of pale pink brocade to match the uncurled ostrich on her hat. Mrs. Beardsley was in black, too, with touches of red both on her gown and her black hat.

Somewhere along the line Mrs. Fred Vinson had picked up her husband, the Chief Justice, for she had been first to the wedding reception given by Mr. and Mrs. William S. Culbertson for their daughter, Jane, who was married yesterday to Kendall Foster of New York.

Regales With Stories

The Chief Justice, as a raconteur, was the center of the party, regaling one friend after another with tales when he was a county judge. Roberta Vinson finally dragged him away so that they'd be on time for an 8 o'clock dinner.

Senator and Mrs. Owen Brewster came on from the Culbertson's reception, so did Mrs. Joseph Farrington, wife of the Delegate from Hawaii, handsome in black with a white ermine stole, muff and hat, and still using a cane after a broken ankle some weeks ago. Mrs. Wallace H. White was there, and Senator and Mrs. Raymond Baldwin, Marriner Eccles, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Mrs. Alexander Smith, wife of the New Jersey Senator, and Senator and Mrs. Sherman Cooper of Kentucky.

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, in an almond green frock with winter white hat, took her turn at the tea table where crisp fresh vegetable hors d' oeuvres, brown bread sandwiches and chocolate-covered cookies were an additional lure.

Mrs. Harold Burton wore an enchanting hat of black starched lace set on the back of her head and she told me it came from Switzerland and that she'd brought it back with her last year but could never muster the courage to wear it.

Mrs. George Malone, wife of the Senator from Nevada, had on a flower decked red hat as a nice complement to her gray frock.

DROPPING in first to greet Jane Culbertson, yesterday's lovely blonde bride, at her wedding reception at the Mayflower, I found a line almost a block long, waiting for entrance into the Chinese room.

Flash bulbs were popping, movies cameras clicking and the bride, and her good looking bridegroom, stood serenely through it all. Mrs. Culbertson, her silver hair softly waved about her face, wore a becoming gown of pale pink crepe and Mrs. Foster, the bridegroom's mother was in blue.

Seemingly all of "old Washington" passed at one time or another around the long buffet table in the ballroom and the gurgling fountain of rum punch.

I saw Mrs. Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Ambassador, talking with Mrs. Harry G. Meem. The South African Minister, Harry Andrews, and Mrs. Andrews, had queued up in line with Gen. Wade Htislip and Mrs. Haislip, pretty in steel-blue satin with a halo of feathers in her hair. Gen. Franklin Babcock and Mrs. Babcock, missed this season from most of the parties, turned up for this one, and others there were Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, who went on to Mr. Flander's tea; Justice and Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mrs. Mason Gulick, Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, Mrs. Emlen Davies, Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Johnson, Mrs. Willam A. Morgan and Judge and Mrs. Justin Miller.

Sister Holds Court

Mrs. Thomas Luckenbill, sister of the bride, who's convalescing slowly from infantile paralysis, had made the trip from New York, was holding court from a wheelchair. Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin, another convalescent, was getting about with a cane after a bad accident to her leg. And then there were Mrs. Buchanan Merryman, Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck, the vavacious Mrs. Conger Pratt, Mrs. Fred Britten and Edward Van Devanter, who stood together on the sidelines; Mr. and Mrs. Hurt Hetzel, Mrs. Charles McEnerny and her daughter, Mrs. Alan Cusick, the one in brown satin with paradise on her matching hat; the other in a trim black suit and a hat of white dotted net.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Stanley White were in the throng, and to go wearing a new blue hat; Mrs. Russell Bennett, Clarence Hewes, Mme. Boncesco, Mrs. Lothrop stoddard, Mrs. Elonzo Tyner, Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Burke Summers, Mrs. Martin Vogel, introducing a Mrs. Garcia, just arrived from New York; Mrs. Wade Ellis and Mrs. W. D. Connor, having a chat; Mrs. Leo Brison Norris with her two daughters, Marion and Laura; Mr. and Mrs. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Thad Brown and Col. and Senora de Munilla.

Your Questions on Homemaking

I have a violin I bought at a pawn shop about 30 years ago and everyone tells me it's valuable. Written on the inside is "Stradivarius-made in 1730." Do you think that could be the year it was made? I would appreciate very much if you could tell me where I could take it to find out the real value or sell it.

J. C.

A musical instrument expert at the Smithsonian Institution tells me that it is highly improbable that your instrument is valuable. In fact, he said, the chances of it being genuine are less than one in a million. The foremost Stradivarius experts, Hills Brothers of London, England, have stated that in all of their experience they have never found a genuine Stradivarius unaccompanied by documents attesting to its manufacture. In his lifetime, Stradivarius is known to have made 1116 musical instruments, including violins, violas, cellos and miniature violins called pachettes for dancing masters. These instruments were so highly prized and so much sought after that most of them were made to order and the documents accompanying the instruments usually included the correspondence between the person ordering the instrument and Stradivarius before and while the instrument was being made. These documents accompany genuine strads which change hands even now. In the 1700s, when Stradivarius was making instruments, it was considered ethical to put a label inside the violin indicating it was a true copy of a strad made in that year. Since that time, the placing of the word Stradivarius and a date inside of an instrument is clearly fraudulent. It is thought that there are thousands of such instruments in the country at the present time. The Smithsonian receives an average of three letters a day from persons over the country who think they have genuine strads. The expert there says the word Stradivarius is the most plagiarized in the world.

A leaflet is issued by the Smithsonian which gives information on identifying Stradivarius violins. It may be obtained by writing to the Musical Instruments Section of the museum at Washington. There are two firms in this country which are outstanding as appraisers of Stradivarius violins: Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., 120 West 42d st., New York, and Lyon and Healy, Wabash ave. and Jackson blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Can you tell me what to do to remove the yellow color from baby clothes that have been packed away? E. P.

For cottons, moistening and sun-bleaching is one of the best and gentlest ways of whitening. This isn't a very good time of year for sun bleaching, however, so the job will probably have to be accomplished through careful use of chlorine bleach. Or, if the cotton fabric is very delicate, use one of the "stripping compounds" sold by dye manufacturers for removing dye from silk. These stripping compounds can also be used to whiten silk baby clothes—in fact, any materials that are not injured by boiling water. Use sodium perborate for bleaching woolen garments. Soak them for a half hour or longer in sodium perborate and soapsuds (4 tablespoons perborate to a pint of soapy water). Then rinse well.

We have recently acquired an old walnut secretary and six cherry chairs. The pieces are not scratched, but merely darkened with age. We would like to know if sanding down to the bare wood is necessary in order to make this beautiful wood glow again. How should we proceed? B. L.

The darkened appearance of your secretary and chairs is probably due to an accumulation of soil which can be removed only by removing all of the finish from the wood. This can be done by sanding, as you suggest, but that is a long slow process. Instead I would suggest you remove the finish by using a varnish remover. There are two kinds of varnish removers; a solution which can be purchased in cans such as benzol or acetone, or an alkali which must be dissolved in water. The liquid removers are highly inflammable and must never be used in a room which is not well ventilated. These liquid removers do not raise the grain of the wood. After removing the finish with them, always go over the bar wood with benzine to take away every trace of the remover. Alkali removers soften the finish quickly, but care must be taken to remove them as soon as the finish is penetrated so as not to soak into the wood. When all finish is off (when using the alkali remover) go over the furniture with water to remove every trace of alkali.

After all old finish is removed, the pieces must be smoothed by sandpapering. Use the finest grades of sandpaper and rub only with the grain of the wood. The sanding is a time consuming task and should not be hurried. Continue sanding until the piece has the feel of satin. When sanded, the finish applied is a matter of your choice. Some old pieces are found to be made of several different kinds of wood which appear different when the finish is removed. If this is the case, or if you wish to deepen the color of the wood, apply a stain at this point. Oil stains are recommended because they are permanent and do not raise the grain of the wood and further sandpapering is therefore not necessary. Brush on the stain freely and allow time for it to penetrate the wood. When the desired color is obtained, wipe surface clean of stain with cheesecloth. If the stain is not sufficiently dark, another coat may be applied. A finish for all woods which is resistant to usage and improves with rubbings is linseed oil. Apply to raw wood, allow to soak in several hours and wipe off surplus. After some days, with daily rubbings, another coat of oil is applied and given the same treatment. Applications are made at intervals until no more oil is absorbed. Rub frequently and very hard to develop a gloss. Instead of the oil finish you could apply clear varnish, sanding after each application is thoroughly dry. Apply at least two coats of varnish (and as many as six, if you like), sanding after each application. Finish by rubbing with oil or wax.

Water, Sewer Fees Revised in Two Counties

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission will handle new sewer and water connections itself under an announcement yesterday which also revised commission fees for such work.

The announcement, latest development in a controversy between the sanitary commission and nearby Maryland plumbers and builders, said new charges would be $80 for water connections and $140 for sewer installations in all sections of Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

Although representing a heavy increase over the 1947 rates of $42.50 for each type of connection, the new schedule contrasted with the commission's previously proposed charges of $225 for water and $350 for sewer installation in improved sections of the county.

By taking back less expensive work it had turned over to plumbers in unimproved sections of the county, the commission said, it would be able to offset the exceptionally high cost of work done in improved sections, where paved streets had to be torn up and then repaired. As a result, a much lower "average cost" throughout the entire area will be made possible.

The decision to take over all the work it previously had allotted to the plumbers came after a series of conferences with plumbers and builders, who had bitterly protested the commission's proposed rates in improved areas. A statement said the action had been taken "in the best interest of the public."

Until last November, the commission had been required by State law to make all connections in both counties. At the special session of the General Assembly, however, special legislation was introduced to allow the sanitary commission to delegate some of the work to local plumbers.

Because it agreed to take over the work on paved streets only the commission said, it was forced to adopt the new rate schedule which became effective January 1

The commission said the proposed area-wide rates will be retroactive, and persons who paid the higher rates will be entitled to refunds.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 16 (AP).—A strike of 18 drivers and maintenance men of the Cumberland division of the Emery Motor Lines was averted today when members of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway, and Motor Coach Employes of America accepted a wage agreement recommended by the negotiating committee.

John M. Elliott, international union representative, said the terms could not be disclosed immediately.

Veteran Wins Round in Fight For Apartment

John M. Webster, Alexandria veteran, yesterday won the first round of his fight against eviction from his Government-owned apartment in Cameron Valley.

Alexandria Civil and Police Court Judge James R. Duncan ruled that Alexandria Redevelopment and Housing Authority cannot evict Webster from his home at 142 Williams st. because he felt there is "no need for housing here by Fort Belvoir." The authority noted an appeal to the Corporation Court.

Housing officials sought eviction on the terms of a lease signed last April, in which Webster agreed to vacate within 30 days after separation from military service at Fort Belvoir. After his separation in May, Fort Belvoir asked his quarters be turned over for military use.

Duncan observed that there are many abandoned barracks at Fort Belvoir which couldeb converted to family living quarters. This, he said, would both ease the Alexandria housing problem and place military personnel closer to their work.

Fort Belvoir officials yesterday repeated a statement previously made by the commanding general, Maj. Gen. William M. Hoge: a pressing housing problem exists at Fort Belvoir and neither money nor facilities are now available to convert existing facilities.

Webster contended the vacating clause was needed during the war, but that it was not the intent of Congress to dispossess veterans. He said a bill is now being prepared in Congress to protect veterans in such cases.

Dr. E. T. Hawkins To Be Inaugurated Towson President

By The Associated Press

Dr. Earle Taylor Hawkins will be inaugurated today as president of Towson State Teachers College, the oldest teacher-training institution in Maryland.

The principal speaker will be Dr. Clyde M. Hill of Yale University.

Opened in 1866 as the Maryland State Normal School, the institution also is among the oldest of its type in the Nation.

Towson State offered only a two-year course for its first 26 years until a third year was added in 1931. In 1934, it became a four-year college. A junior college program was added in 1946.

Dr. Hawkins, who assumed office last September upon retirement of Dr. M. Theresa Wiedefeld, is the first male president.

Governor Lane, other State officials and many of the 7000 alumni are expected to attend the ceremonies.

All high and preparatory school newspapers in the State, which are eligible under SIPA rules, may enter the competition.

During the six-week cruise on the USS Pocono, Blandy will confer with task force commanders on fleet problems and will observe fleet tactical exercises conducted under his over-all command.

Visits will be made to Charleston, S. C., Key West, Fla., Guantanamo, San Juan and Roosevelt Roads before Blandy returns to Norfolk late in February.

Va. Legislators Get Reaction to Tuck Tax Plan

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16 (AP).—Virginia State legislators adjourned quickly today and hurried home to sound out their constituents on Governor Tuck's plan to increase State revenues by $21,700,000 without a sales tax.

Today's short session was not entirely uneventful, however. It produced:

1. Announcement of a meeting tomorrow of representatives from flue-cured tobacco-growing counties to consider bringing Virginia officially into Tobacco Associates, Inc. This nonprofit corporation was formed to promote the export of bright leaf tobacco and is supported in other States by an assessment, or tax, of 10 cents per tobacco-growing acre.

2. A bill authorizing Governor Tuck to execute a compact bringing Virginia into the Ohio River Sanitation District Commission to abate and control pollution.

For 72-Hour Firemen's Week

Bills limiting the work week of city firemen to 72 hours and giving special and county police officers the same powers of arrest granted State police.

4. Legislators' thanks for the "magnitude . . . and excellence" of "The Common Glory," produced in Williamsburg last summer, with anticipation of becoming an annual production.

5. Local bills involving the City of Portsmouth.

Reaction continued indefinite on Governor Tuck's financial plans, to be set forth in detail with the budget. There were three groups, one viewing the increase in current tax rates with distaste; another which did not wish to be quoted as yet but which indicated it would press for more aid for education, and a third group which called the Tuck program a "middle-of-the-road" plan which suited them exactly.

Vaden Calls Tobacco Meeting

After this weekend's sampling of public opinion, representatives were expected to be more willing to stand up and be counted. The coming battle gave signs of being between Mr. Tuck's program advocates and those who suggest the plan does not go far enough in the way of aid for education and for localities, particularly cities.

The meeting on the tobacco problem was called by Senator Robert C. Vaden of Gretna. Born of the withdrawal of British buyers from the American market, Tobacco Associates seeks to promote export trade to replace the British purchases as much as possible.

House Floor Leader E. Blackburn Moore of Berryville, said the Ohio River Valley Commission would not affect Virginia communities at present. The New River, the only tributary, already exceeds the antipollution standards of the commission, he said.

Bill Would Aid Arrest Powers

Under another proposed measure, special and county police officers would be permitted to make an arrest without warrant in cases where they, in uniform and wearing badges, see reasonable grounds, based on personal investigation and witnesses statements, that a crime has been committee. The police power bill was introduced by Delegate Frank P. Moncure of Stafford.

Delegate Edward T. Hayes of Richmond, offered a bill proving attorneys' access to accident reports filed with the State police but providing they shall not be used as evidence in criminal or civil trials.

Haynes also presented a bill limiting the work week of firemen in city departments to 72 hours, in stretches not exceeding 24 hours except in cases of conflagration.

County vs. City Row Starts

The "county vs city" controversy was still budding but was not yet in full bloom. Richmond delegates, hearing of objection to the new Richmond charter, did so spadework over night. Senator James E. Gardner and Delegate G. Edmond Massie, both of Richmond, said today they expected the charter to go through "without much trouble."

Changes in the uniform Narcotics Drugs Act were proposed by Senator Bird. One proposal would reduce the amount of morphine allowed in "exempted" preparations and another would restrict the sale of "exempted" narcotics to registered pharmacists.

The Senate met only 15 minutes today. The House was busier, taking 30 minutes. Adjournment followed until Monday, whe the Governor's budget message is scheduled to be received. Equally important Monday will be committee assignments. When ther are received, the legislative mill will begin to grind in earnest.

A La Gloria Swanson

Vera and Studio Both Off Base

By Richard L. Coe

"I HAVEN'T MUCH to offer you except companionship, money and love," murmurs the hero of "The Flame," which is now flickering interminably at the Metropolitan.

This oblique reference to the satiety which disrupts so many of our twentieth century lives is perhaps the only suggestion that "The Flame" is a new film. Granted, Thomas a Kempis had the same forebodings, but you can't help feeling for this sensitive fellow who knew that whatever the girl might want it wasn't enough.

Republic, which usually makes westerns, has made this vehicle for Vera Ralston, who is usually on skates. Since the thin ice of the tribulations of inherited wealth is new to both parties, the result is a self-conscious copy of films in which Corinne Griffith and Gloria Swanson used to suffer so orchidaceously.

"The Flame" begins well enough by showing a murderer looking back on his life. You're taken by night into one of those expensive, homes at the edge of a cliff. The living room is a vast cavern in which you find Miss Ralston looking nervous (true, Miss Ralston always looks nervous) and sinister Blanche Yurka, who resembles a painted post.

Mad for Electric Tubes

The third party is the hero, Robert Paige, who you're quickly told is on the verge of death. His understandable depression is depicted by his passion for a Hammond organ, a vile and fiendish instrument of aural torture composed of electric tubes which only the tone deaf can confuse with the gorgeous sounds of a fine pipe organ.

Except for this pitiable lack of taste, however, Paige is a very fine guy who wants to marry his nurse, Miss Ralston. She, it seems, was a nurse who fell in love with his worthless brother while treating him in a French hospital. Now she's in cahoots with the brother, plans to marry Paige and inherit his wealth at the demise momentarily expected by all, except members of the audience, to whom it is perfectly clear that Paige is healthy and sane.

This evil is snafued by two developments unlooked for by the plotting brother—John Carroll. First, Miss Ralston falls in love with Paige and then a blackmailer sniffs out the dastardly scheme. This leads Carroll to act with violence if not with speed sufficient to keep "The Flame" from going out altogether.

Night Clubs Again

Republic has gone to a good deal of trouble to give skateless Miss Ralston a flossy production. Only yesterday we were remarking on the movies' subtle crusade to besmirch nightclub performers and, doggone, if "The Flame" doesn't come up with another night club singer of low character.

"THE FLAME," Republic release produced and directed by John H. Auer, screenplay by Lawrence Kimble, based on a story by Robert T. Shannon. At the Metropolitan.

THE CAST

George MacAllister	John Carroll
Carlotta Duval	Vera Ralston
Barry MacAllister	Robert Paige
Ernie Hicks	Broderick Crawford
Dr. Mitchell	Henry Travers
Aunt Margaret	Blanche Yurka
Helene Anderson	Constance Dowling
Celia	Hattie McDaniel
Chang	Victor Sen Yung
The Minister	Harry V. Cheshire
Detective	John Milan
Detective	Garry Owen
Policeman	Eddie Dunn

As sung by Miss Constance Dowling, she's a far better performer than most, for Miss Dowling's "Love Me or Leave Me" is the hottest fire in "The Flame," but you soon learn that away from her cabaret she's as worthless as the breed is always depicted.

Hattie McDaniel is on hand as the heroine's talkative maid and Victor Sen Yung quotes philosophy from Confucius or Winchell—he admits he isn't sure which. Broderick Crawford's blackmailer is valuable if only as a reminder that should anyone pull his trick on you, you should go to the police. And Henry Travers happens along at just the right time to protect the hero's healthy ill-health.

THE CAPITOL schedule will be a bit different this Sunday, with the picture going on first instead of the stage show . . . Which means the theater will open at 1:15 and "Intrigue" will start unreeling at 1:35 . . . There'll only be three stage shows, the first going on at 3:30 . . . Whether this will become a policy, the Capitol doesn't know, but we thought we'd call it to your attention.

"I KNOW WHERE I'M GOING" begins its fourth week at the Hippodrome today, which pleases this department immensely . . . the Wendy Hiller-Roger Livesey film has been playing to standing room only from late afternoons on. . . . Livesey, by the way, is the chap who acted Colonel Blimp in the five movie of several years ago, quite a different role.

TONIGHT'S the finale for the Thespian Study Club's production of Zoe Akins' Pulitzer Prize winning play, "The Old Maid," which she adapted from a short novel of Edith Wharton in 1935 . . . the Howard Theater's the place, 8:40 the time.

LICK OF HONEY: Janis Paige, on the set of Warner's "Winter Meeting," makes friends with "Honey," the pup of Jim Davis. Jim, who's no relation, is playing opposite Bette Davis in the forthcoming film. They're cute, huh?

Tito Pressure On Yugoslavs Abroad Told

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 16 (AP).—A steel worker preparing to leave for Yugoslavia told the Sydney Sun today that pressure was put on him and other Yugoslavs living in Australia to return to their native land. A spokesman for the Yugoslav consulate general here denied the charge.

Reports have persisted that representatives of Marshal Tito's government both in Australia and New Zealand are attempting to persuade all native Yugoslavs to return. There are about 5000 in Australia and 3000 in New Zealand.

"I do not want to leave," the steel worker was quoted by the Sydney Sun. "I have my mother and father in Yugoslavia. I have been told I will have to go over to them or they will suffer for it."

He has been in Australia eight years.

A Yugoslav repatriation committee has been formed in Sydney to help speed the return of the Yugoslavs, some of whom have lived in Australia as long as 20 years. Several hundred are to leave Australia next week.

Hungary to Repatriate

London, Jan. 16 (AP).—Tass, Soviet news agency quoted the Budapest radio tonight as announcing that Hungarian representatives will go to the United States and Canada "to make preparations for the repatriation of Hungarians."

Correction

The address of Percy M. May, 46, defendant fined $750 and given a 1-year suspended jail sentence yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court for his part in a Prince Georges County lottery, was incorrectly reported in The Washington Post yesterday.

May told police he lived at 18 Woodland ave., Takoma Park, Md. His correct address is 3812 N. Washington blvd., Arlington, Va. May said last night he lived at the Takoma Park address until slightly more than a year ago, and still "thinks of it as home." The Washington Post regrets the error.

Public Owned Land Survey Being Made

Washington's Commissioners want Congress to order a survey of all publicly-owned land in the District to see if any part of it can be better used.

A resolution drafted by the Commissioners and calling for a five-member special committee to make the survey has been introduced in the House by Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.). Similar legislation is slated for introduction in the Senate shortly.

Klein's bill declares that about 45 per cent of the District land area, exclusive of streets and alleys, is now publicly owned.

The bill adds that this large percentage of land area in public ownership has resulted in "deplorable congestion in private housing, acute and increasing traffic and parking problems . . ."

Exemption of all the land from local taxes had disrupted the District's tax structure, the bill said.

Members of the proposed survey committee would include the president of the Board of District Commissioners, the Federal Works Administrator, and the Chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and two District residents appointed by the President.

Their job would be to review the present use of all public land areas in the District, and report their recommendations for better use of the land to Congress within 180 days.

Truman Names Finney

President Truman yesteray nominated Leland Stanford Finney to be United States Marshal for the Western District of Virginia, succeeding the late John White Stuart.

Deposits of Uranium Found In South Africa Gold Fields

Capetown, South Africa, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—Considerable deposits of uranium have been discovered in South Africa, the government announced today, and some experts speculated that there might be more uranium than gold in the fabulous main reef of Witwatersrand—one of the world's richest gold fields near Johannesburg.

Disclosure of the uranium deposits, vital in the development of atomic energy, was made by Governor General Gideon Brand Van Zyl at the opening of the South African Parliament.

At the same time, Van Zyl disclosed that South Africa will occupy the Prince Edward Group of islands, about 1200 miles southwest of Capetown, in view of the greatly increased interest of other nations in the Antarctic regions. Deposits apparently did not include the known deposits of pitchblende, source of radium, in the Gordonia district.

Van Zyl told the legislature that a bill would be introduced to provide government control over uranium deposits.

3 Years, 10 Months Given Miss Hottel

Miss Ruth Hottel, 32, former Chevy Chase Club switchboard operator, convicted of strangling her new-born infant last February 6, yesterday was sentenced to three years and 10 months in the Maryland State Reformatory for Women.

When he imposed sentence in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Chief Judge Charles A. Woodward said he did not believe Miss Hottel's testimony that she remembered nothing of the birth, which took place in a Chevy Chase Club locker room.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Woodward declared: "the court cannot overlook the seriousness of this crime which you tried to conceal."

40-Hour Week For Nurses at Johns Hopkins

Baltimore, Jan. 15 (AP).—Johns Hopkins hospital is first of 30-odd hospitals in the State to adopt the 40-hour week for nurses, the Maryland State Nurses Association announced today at the opening of its annual meeting.

Other hospitals observe a 44-to-48-hour week.

Dr. Perrin H. Long, professor of preventive medicine at Hopkins who introduced sulpha drugs in this country, was scheduled to address the association's dinner meeting tonight on "atomic energy in medicine."

The association is meeting jointly with the Maryland State League of Nursing Information and the State organization for public health nursing.

Florence M. Gipe, chairman of the committee on nursing information, told the gathering that the 1947 student enrollment in nursing schools was better for Maryland than the national average. Maryland reached 72 per cent of its goal, compared to 60 per cent for the Nation.

Six St. Mary's Men Named to Oyster Group

Leonardtown, Md., Jan. 16 (Spl.). A six-man committee to advise State fisheries authorities on St. Marys County oystering problems was elected at a two-day meeting of 250 oystermen that ended here tonight.

Named to represent Potomac River oystermen were Frank Brown, Abell's, chairman; Charles Bietzell, Avenue; Tox McKay, St. Georges Island; Taft Tippett, Ridge, and John Greenwell and Oscar Gatton, Hollywood.

The committee, authorized by legislation approved last year, will serve as an advisory council to the Tidewater Fisheries Commission on proper means of planting oysters, tonging methods and conservation measures in the county.

Ralph Hammer, oyster specialist of the fisheries commission, predicted that creation of advisory units in the counties would aid the commission in instituting conservation methods and regulations that would eventually enable Maryland to increase oyster production by a sizable margin.

John E. Clark, chairman of the State Board of natural resources, told the oystermen that they now have a "chance to rebuild the industry." Maryland and Virginia must take equal responsibility for adequate conservation measures to assure a continuous and abundant supply of the bivalves, he said.

Proffit Denies Aiding Rakes Rake in Profits

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16 (AP).—Joseph E. Proffit, Floyd County bank president and former legislator, denied today that he and his associates were assisting Hugh N. Rakes, on trial in Federal District Court here for misapplication of more than $435,000 in funds of a Fredericksburg bank, in a check-kiting scheme.

Proffit denied knowledge of any irregularities in the bank account Rakes carried in the Floyd County bank. The prosecution presented checks being Proffit's indorsement and memoranda purporting to have been prepared by Rakes as recapitulation of his complicated checking activity.

Also presented weer two letters, supposedly written by a bank employe, advising Rakes to "look out" for checks that should be "taken up" when they arrived for payment at the now-defunct Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Fredericksburg.

The Floyd County banker was the last witness to testify on the tenth day of the retrial of the involved case which ran for 53 days here this spring.

An earlier witness, Clarence L. Robey, president of the Purcellville National Bank, collapsed in the courtroom today and although he returned later, District Attorney George R. Humrickhouse waived further cross-examination.

Prior to his collapse, Robey heard a letter read in which he purportedly told Rakes that "we run a different kind of bank from the ones you have told me about."

Three Fairlington Strikers to Face Grand Jury Action

Three Fairlington strikers were held for the Fairfax grand jury yesterday, each charged with two counts of felonious assault on workers.

They were: Wilson Robinson, 3345 King st., Alexandria; Edward M. Putnam, 635 N. West st., Alexandria; Wilbert L. Roberson, 940 P st. nw.

Fairfax police arrested the men December 13 on complaint of three maintenance workers who said they were attacked on their way to work at the strike-bound housing development. The strikers then charged the workers with assault.

Judge Harry L. Carrico acquitted the three workers, Bryant Tyree, 120 N. Henry st., Alexandria; Charles H. Ball, 5809 N. Washington blvd., Arlington; Thomas O. Davis, 3035 Calvin st., Alexandria; and another man, R. B. Shunk, 4824 S. 29th st., Arlington.

Policeman Dismisesd

The "Wayward Bus" Is Back in the News Again

Mrs. G. R. Wilson of 59 Allison st. ne. boarded an H-4 bus shortly after 1 p. m. one day recently.

There was only one other passenger aboard, and no customers waiting along the route. So the bus jogged placidly along its route with nary a stop.

When it got to Park rd. and New Hampshire ave., it should have turned left. But instead it continued straight on through.

Mrs. Wilson glanced at the driver, and then at the other passenger. Both were wool-gathering; neither seemed aware that anything unusual was going on.

So finally our correspondent had to call out:

"Excuse me, but weren't you supposed to make a left turn about six blocks back?"

The driver came to life with a start, and a deep crimson hue began to spread across his face. Pulling up to the curb, he stammered:

"Gosh—I'm sorry. I forgot I was working. You see—I drive home this way every night, and I forgot myself."

BRRRR!

Hal Feyling of 812 K st. se. says that shivers ran up and down his spine when he heard the International Harvester program's slogan, "It's the fashion to freeze."

Just as Hal was ready to hammer on the steam pipes for more heat, he discovered they were talking about their deep-freeze units.

GRIM REMINDER

Mrs. Gertrude Brown of 2651 16th st. nw. passes along a practical suggestion that will probably affect you as it did me.

Mrs. Brown has been collecting clothing for foreign relief, and reminds us that if you're giving men's or women's shoes, it's the larger sizes that are needed badly—because swollen and frozen feet are the general rule among the underfed and underclothed.

If your reaction is the same as mine, you're probably offering up a silent prayer of thanks that we're doing the giving—and not the receiving.

MISCELLANY

Coincidence or design? The feature at the Metropolitan, is "The Flame" and one of the short subjects deals with fire prevention . . . The automatic mailing machine has been moved from the main lobby of the Ben Franklin postoffice to the box section, which stays open later at night . . . Three Glenn Dale nurses and one of the girls in the office are wondering if it'll ever get to be January 30—because that's the day Colonial Airlines will whisk them off to Bermuda's Harmony Hall for a long anticipated vacation. It will be the first air ride and the first trip out of the country for all four—Nurses Edna Spielman, Margaret Beckwith and Arlene Strickler, and Nell Bryant of the office staff . . . The National Amvets Auxiliary needs a piano for its newly opened clubrooms, and anybody who can help is asked to call Mrs. John C. Patsos at Decatur 1447 . . . Louis Aiken, barrel-voiced former WINX newscaster, passed through town recently on a business trip for KURV of Edinburg, Tex., which he now manages. He says, "You can have Florida; Texas is just as good and bigger" . . . Amanda Wall is looking for a recording of "Bumble Boogie" and you can contact her at 116 W. Woodbine st., Chevy Chase, Md. . . . Fully half the people who send me clippings of typographical errors fail to spell my name right.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Lovable male puppy, about 3 months old, affectionate and gentle." (Union 4547 after 6 p. m.)

"White cat, 15 months old; year-old black and white cat; gray mother and 2-month-old kitten." (North 2428.)

MONEY QUIZ

Addison V. Brandon of 1622 18th st. nw. raises an eyebrow at the recent news item in which the head of the Secret Service advised money handlers to become more familiar with our currency.

"A wonderful suggestion," says District Liner Brandon. "But he forgot to tell us how to hold on to our money long enough to get familiar with it."

Play fair, and don't peep. Whose picture is on a $1 bill? Whose is on a five? Ten? How far can you go?

When you're all finished, come back to the much maligned $2 bill. That one stops practically everybody.

NO MEANIES

Jackson Schlesinger of 3344 Brandywine st. nw. says that a Connecticut ave. florist is displaying this sign:

"All Kind Corsages."

PERSONAL NOTES

Porter Spells Price Control Hopes

By Drew Pearson

Paul Porter, former OPA director, was asked by a newsman to comment on prospects for a Republican-approved price-control program.

Pearson

"The only answer I can give, he replied, "is a four-letter word."

"We can't print it," warned the newsman, but I'd like to know what the word is, just to gratify my own curiosity."

"I won't say the word," replied Porter. "I'll spell it. T-A-F-T."

Exit Air Watchdogs

President Truman, after firing Chairman Jim Landis of the Civil Aeronautics Board, has now got himself in the next position of having not a single, solitary top adminstrator to regulate the vital airlines of the Nation.

His other top airman, Ted Wright, most noted air technician of the world, has just resigned as head of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, while the third man, Charles Stanton, has taken a four-year leave of absence to build up the Brazilian airlines at twice the salary he gets from Uncle Sam.

This leaves the airways of the Nation denuded of Government administrators. It also leaves lower personnel of both the CAB an the CAA with morale shattered and ready to follow their chiefs into private business.

Behind all this, it seems fair to recall that one Harry Truman has made some fine speeches at Princeton University and other places about the importance of young men making a career of government. But when a man does adopt Government service as a career, Harry Truman seems to go out of his way to fire him.

Two days after his Princeton speech last June, for instance, he fired Ray Wakefield, a Republican, from the Federal Communications Commission, despite his long and meritorious career first with the State of California, later with the United States Government.

On top of this he fired Landis as head of the Civil Aeronautics Board despite the fact that Landis had served faithfully as chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, spent grueling years as wartime head of civilian defense, plus several years on a meager salary governing the airlines of the Nation.

Then just as the Senate was rebuffing Truman's plan to replace Landis with a military man, Maj. Gen. Laurence Kuter, Ted Wright slammed in his resignation as head of the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

This is just as great a loss as Landis. For while Landis, as head of CAB, allocated airline routes and fixed general policy, Wright, as head of CAA, regulated airline safety. Every country in the world recognized him as the top air-safety technician.

Wright gave as his reason for resigning not only low Government salary, but the lack of opportunity in Government services. In other words, politicians were appointed to juicy plums over his head.

President Truman will have to do some tall persuading to get anyone else of high caliber to step into one of these jobs.

Mayflower VA Chief

Gen. Carl Gray, new Veterans Administrator, seems to have been greatly impressed by the Federal witch hunt. Appearing before the House Veterans Committee last week, he told Congressmen: "There isn't anybody any more American than I am."

"In fact, none of my ancestors came to this country any later than the eighteenth century."

Committee members then each had a few words of welcome for the new administrator. When it came his turn, able, skeptical Walter Huber, Akron (Ohio) Democrat, pointedly told Gray he hoped he would "carry on and implement the good work done by your predecessor, General Bradley." Gray had said nothing about Bradley.

"And I appreciate your Mayflower ancestry," Huber went on. "But what I hope is that we can work together on behalf of the little fellows who came over here on crowded cattle boats and whose names we can't pronounce."

"We certainly will, Congressman," replied Gray, flushing.

Merry-Go-Round

Senator Pappy O'Daniel of Texas threatened to duck out of a "Meet the Press" radio program unless the newspapermen who interviewed him were his own personal friends. "Meet the Press" is supposed to be a tough, two-fisted radio interview, but those Pappy finally selected to face him across the microphone were Walter Trohan of the Chicago Tribune, Bob Johnson of the Houston Post, and Sarah McClendon of several small Texas papers. They covered Pappy with verbal kisses . . . Venerable Senator Bob Wagner of New York is sometimes accused of being too ill to be on the job. However, he was able to conduct a most significant housing survey. It showed that nine out of every ten mayors in cities of 50,000 population or over believe that private enterprise cannot take care of low-cost housing. The Government, they feel, must do it . . . the State Department is getting ready to recognize the bloodiest dictator in Central America—General Somosa of Nicaragua . . . Prodded by President Truman's plan for health legislation, the Republicans are getting busy. Senator Taft's labor committee will hold hearings in late January on two opposing health bills—one, introduced by Taft himself, calls for Federal doles to State health agencies; the other, offered by Senator Murray of Montana, provides for far-reaching national health insurance. The doctors don't like the latter.

If I could turn the pages back . . . And start my book anew . . . I know my heart would want to live . . . A life of love for you . . . My every deed would be my way . . . Of trying to express . . . That all the pleasure I could want . . . Would be your happiness . . . My every thought would be a scheme . . . To make you more content . . . And let you know by every sign . . . How much your friendship meant . . . You know I love you and I try . . . To do these things today . . . But often I regret the time . . . That I have whiled away . . . The days and nights and all the years . . . That I might spend with you . . . If I could turn the pages back . . . And start my book anew.
